Favorable House Votes On Tax Cut Bill Today

Knutson Measure's Passage by Wide Margin Expected, With Senate Delay

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

The House is scheduled to vote today on the 6½ billion dollar tax cut bill of Representative Knutson (R., Minn.) with passage expected by a large margin.

When the Senate gets around to the measure, there is considerable likelihood it will undergo changes to reduce the total revenue cut, possible to 4½ billion. In any event, the Senate is not expected to consider it until agreement has been reached on the cost of the European Recovery Plan and the size of the 1949 Federal budget.

Knutson's bill provides for a $100 increase in personal exemptions, direct reductions of 10 to 30 per cent and the privilege of using the community property system of splitting total income between husband and wife for tax reporting purposes.

Democrats who are expected to make an effort to send the bill back to the Ways and Means Committee, seek to incorporate in it some of the features recommended by President Truman in his State of the Union message.

They would keep the community property idea, eliminate percentage cuts in favor of a $200 cut in personal exemptions, and make up lost revenue by special taxes on corporation profits.

Knutson freely predicts any tax cut bill could be passed over a presidential veto, but his opposite number in the Senate is not so sure.

"In my opinion," said Chairman Millikin (R., Colo.) of the Senate Finance Committee, "that kind of a bill (Knutson's) will not pass the Senate."

Millikin felt the Senate would follow the general outline of the House, but would reduce the cut in revenue.

Showdown in View Over Sen. Thomas' Refusal to Testify

Showdown was in prospect yesterday over refusal of Senator Elmer Thomas (D., Okla.) to submit to public hearing of his commodity speculation.

Chairman Ferguson (R., Mich.) said his Senate Appropriations Subcommittee is continuing its investigation of Thomas' activities with the full intent of holding public hearings. The Oklahoman said last Wednesday he would not permit Ferguson "to make a Roman holiday out of me."

Thomas said he would furnish "all the information they want, but they can't subpena me." Senate officials said there is little doubt that, on his rights as a Senator, he can refuse to appear and make it stick.

The committee is examining dealings of public officials in its investigation of speculation in foodstuffs.

Nearly Nude Body Of Woman Found Frozen in Snow

Walpole, Mass., Feb. 1 (U.P.).—The mutilated, nearly nude body of Mrs. Mildred Rafuse Clifford, a 42-year-old divorcee was found frozen in the snow in the driveway of her home today.

About 300 yards away the snow was trampled and kicked about. Between the two points lay a trail of bloodstains, a handkerchief and a silk stocking.

Mrs. Clifford apparently had been beaten on the head. Her body was bruised and mutilated.

She was clad only in underwear and ski pants which had been partly ripped from her. A search of the area showed no sign of other clothes.

District Spared

Heavy Snow Slows Travel From South

A severe coastal storm which brought as much as 17 inches of snow to parts of Virginia and delayed trains into Washington yesterday veered out to sea, sparing the city and Northern States.

Elsewhere in the Nation, the cold spell moderated but fuel shortages slashed into industrial production throwing more than 300,000 workers into idleness, as well as creating acute heating problems in thousands of homes.

The weekend snow storm left much of eastern North Carolina helpless. Wilmington was coated in ice, all but one telephone line into the city were broken, and 8000 to 10,000 families were without electricity Saturday night. Schools in 26 counties and four cities will be closed today.

North Caroline Closes Highways

Approximately 800 persons were stranded on Virginia highways during the storm, many of them bus passengers. North Carolina police closed U. S. Highways No. 1 and 301 at the Virginia border. Other Virginia primary highways were reported to have been reopened.

Two State police officers were trapped atop a 4000-foot snowbound peak near Elkins, W. Va., for nearly 15 hours before being rescued.

The District's predicted early Sunday snowfall did not materialize when the storm faded out in the vicinity of Quantico. Temperatures here, meanwhile, rose slightly from preceding days, varying from 18 degrees above zero at 7:42 a. m. to 31 at 3:42 p. m.

For today the Washington Weather Bureau forecasts mostly sunny and milder in the afternoon, with the mercury climbing to the upper 30s, following a clear and colder night when the temperature was expected to drop to 14 above in the city and 5 above in the suburbs.

The storm, which centered off

GOP Demand For Aid Facts Gets Results

State Dept. Reported Ready to Provide Overall Estimates

Republican pressure for more facts on Administration sponsors of long range aid to Europe is beginning to produce results which should give impetus to action on the program now before Congress.

The State Department was reported ready to give the Senate Foreign Relations Committee an estimate of the over-all cost of foreign aid, including that to China, Greece and the occupied areas. These figures, demanded by Foreign Relations Chairman Vandenburg (R., Mich.) were expected to raise the total first cost for foreign recovery to some eight billion dollars.

Bank Census Promised

The Treasury Department, probably this week, will notify Vandenburg that a sensus of bank balances held by foreigners in this country will shortly be made. Such a census has been demanded by Senator Lodge (R., Mass.), who contends countries seeking aid from the United States should do something about the dollar balances held by their own wealthy citizens.

Overall foreign aid estimates have long been demanded by leading Republicans, headed by Senator Bridges (R., N. H.) and Representative Judd (R., Minn.). These Republicans have contended Congress could not decide on a program for part of the world until it knew what would be needed ultimately for the entire recovery plan.

Several weeks ago Secretary of State Marshall gave Congress a rough outline of a proposed program for China, to cost between 250 and 300 million dollars. He indicated this money would be used principally to stabilize the Chinese currency.

A census of foreign bank accounts here would be made by the Department of Justice and would be similar to that carried out in 1940 when balances of German, Japanese and Italian citizens were

Home Rule Hearings Start Today

Joint Senate-House Committee to Hear 5 D. C. Officials as First Witnesses

Public hearings which may give Washingtonians the right to vote for the first time since 1873 will begin on Capitol Hil at 10 a. m. today.

On the eve of the hearings, Representative James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.), father of the home rule and reorganization plan, said he knew of "no core of citizens' opposition to the plan."

Hearings are scheduled to be held in the Caucus Room of the Old House Office Building.

First witnesses to be called before the joint Congressional committee, headed by Auchincloss and Senator Joseph H. Ball (R., Minn.) are the three District Commissioners, John Russell Young, Guy Mason and Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young, Corporation Counsel Vernon West and Budget Officer Walter Fowler.

Tomorrow's Witnesses

Witnesses for tomorrow include Federal Budget Director James E. Webb; Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant 3d., chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, and Mrs. Katherine H. Stone, first vice president of the National League of Women Voters.

For Wednesday, the witnesses included Dr. Louis Brownlow, a former District Commissioner who conducted the study of reorganizing the executive branch of the Federal Government for the late President Roosevelt; Wilbur S. Finch, head of the Central Suffrage Conference; Kenneth Armstrong, treasurer of the Federation of Citizens Associations; John H. Connaughton, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations; Austin L. Fickling, chairman of the suffrage committee of the Federation of Civic Associations and Mrs. Milton Dunn of the District League of Women Voters.

About 50 persons have applied to testify.

Expected to Last a Week

A committee spokesman said yesterday that the hearings, which are expected to last through next Monday, probably will be "wound up" with the appearance of four new witnesses on the home rule plan.

These would be Frank R. Jelleff, local merchant and philanthropist; Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, former United States Minister to Norway; Elmer Davis, writer and one-time OWI head, and Merlo J. Pusey, editorial writer for The Washington Post.

The home rule plan would change the District government by putting an elected city council at its head in place of the present Commissioners. The council would appoint a city manager as top city executive.

Two strong civic groups—the Washington Board of Trade and the Junior Board of Commerce—were still silent last night on the stand they will take on the plan.

The board of directors of the trade board meets at noon today to act upon its suffrage committee's recommendations.

It is understood that the Junior Board of Commerce is waiting to announce its stand until after the Board of Trade's decision is made public.

French Reds Open Drive for Party Members

Paris, Feb. 1 (NYHT).—The French Communist Party opened today a strong campaign for new members with the publication of membership blanks in its daily newspaper, "L'Humanite."

Readers were urged to fill in their names and addresses and send the information to party headquarters. "No questions are asked and no conditions are laid down."

The paper called for organized "recruitment" of members everywhere including the smallest hamlets, by word of mouth, through newspapers, tracts and pamphlets, and by posters, even if in some cases these must be made by hand.

Pupils Get More Room

Browne School Strike Ends; Two Suits to Decide 'Issues'

Nearly two months to the day after it began, the strike of the Browne Junior High School pupils will end today.

Gardner L. Bishop, spokesman for the striking parents, said yesterday that Browne parents are sending their children back to school today, while the courts decide the "issues" involved in the strike.

These are in two suits. One, filed by the Browne Junior High School Parent-Teacher Association, asks that the Board of Education be enjoined from violating the law by assigning to Negroes elementary schools for junior high use when adequate junior high facilities are available.

A second suit, instituted by Judine Consuelo Bishop and her father, Gardner L. Bishop, and by Barbara Kean Arnold and her mother, Mrs. Edith H. Arnold, charges that the School Board maliciously deprives Negro pupils of equal educational opportunity solely because of their race, and that it has "surplus facilities for white pupils" which it refuses to transfer to Negro students despite overcrowded conditions in their schools.

Under a plan worked out by the Board of Education for Browne Junior High School, the students now will be housed in five self-

Nehru, Patel Head List; Troops Fire On Rioters

New Delhi, Feb. 1 (AP).—The prime minister of India and two other key government leaders have been marked for murder in a deeply laid conspiracy which police are moving to crush, a high official said tonight.

Sardar Vallabhai Patel,, "iron man" of the Congress Party and Indian home minister, said he was a target in the plot, along with Prime Minister Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru and Education Minister Maulana Abul Kalam Azad.

Patel declined to say specifically whether the conspiracy had included Gandhi's assassination. Another high government official said that was exactly what Patel meant, and predicted immediate political reverberations.

Places Floral Tribute

Today the sorrowing Nehru laid roses and jasmine beside Gandhi's funeral pyre, where the slain patriot's ashes lay in state. The ashes will be consigned tomorrow to the Jumna River, which flows into the holy Ganges.

Tears streamed down Nehru's face as he placed the floral tribute.

"Bapuji, here are flowers," said Nehru. "Today at least I have you. bones and ashes to offer them. Where will I offer them tomorrow and to whom?"

Bapuji affectionately means father.

Nehru could not remain long. He asked relatives to stay on, saying, "Let me not create a scene here again. Let me go home."

Gunfire from police and Indian troops crackled here and in Bombay Province to quell rioters who shouted blame for Gandhi's murder upon the militant Hindu Mahasabha Party. Mahasabha leaders were beaten. The death toll so far was 23.

Troops Called Out

A news dispatch from Cawnpore, big industrial town in the United Provinces, said troops were called out and curfew imposed there after attacks upon a Hindu group opposed to Gandhi's preachings.

Police in Bombay made a series of arrests yesterday in connection with the purported conspiracy.

Police here arrested G. V. Deshpande, secretary of the Mahasabha Party, on undisclosed charges.

Patel, India's chief law enforcement officer, said:

"There is ample evidence that we were marked to be liquidated because a certain group believed we were making too many concessions to Pakistan and Moslems generally."

Patel did not name the Mahasabha Party. Police said Narayan Vinayak Godse, held as the assassin of Gandhi, was a member. The statement aroused furious resentment among members of the Congress and Socialist parties.

Labor Leaders To Attend GSI Hearing Today

2 Officials of Local To Go 'Voluntarily' Before House Group

A House Labor Subcommittee is slated to resume its probe of the month-old GSI cafeteria strike at 10 a. m. today.

Among those who will appear at the hearing will be President Richard A. Bancroft and Business Agent Oliver T. Palmer of Cafeteria Workers Local 471 (CIO). They said they would appear "voluntarily" after subpena servers failed to locate them for more than a week.

Abram Flaxer, president of the United Public Workers of America (CIO), with which Local 471 is affiliated, is also expected to testify after being handed a subpena Friday as he was entering the Labor Department building.

Business Agent Palmer announced after a closed union meeting yesterday at the Vermont Avenue Baptist Church, 1630 Vermont ave. nw., that members wholeheartedly indorsed the decision of union leaders to appear voluntarily before the House subcommittee, headed by Representative Clare E. Hoffman (R., Mich.)

"We understand they wanted us and we are prepared to go down and discuss the issues in the strike," Palmer declared.

The walkout, involving some 1500 workers in 42 cafeterias serving Federal workers, enters its fifth week today. The walkout was called after Government Services, Inc., refused to bargain unless the union filed non-Communist affidavits. Local 471 had sought a 15-cent hourly wage boost.

J. C. Niehuss, personnel director of GSI, said last night that "service looks swell" from now on. He reported "patronage is steadily increasing" and the firm is now serving some 74,000 customers daily. It normally serves about 80,000.

Two District residents died yesterday of injuries suffered in earlier traffic accidents.

Their deaths followed two highway traffic fatalities in Maryland and Virginia Saturday night, involving one District resident.

The dead are:

Robert H. Leake, 33, of 3513 Ames st. ne.

Miss Virginia M. Woodward, 30, of 8403 16th st., Silver Spring, Md.

Walter Foss, 31, of 26 Buchanan st. ne.

Harry L. Clark, 48, of Woodbridge, Va.

Dies in Hospital

Leake, a carpenter, died at 6:22 a. m. yesterday in Casualty Hospital. He suffered a fractured skull Saturday at Minnesota ave. and Blaine st. ne., when he stepped into the side of a car which police said was driven by Russell E. Knodle, 32, of 310 Ridge rd. se.

Miss Woodward, who was employed as a stenographer at the Bureau of Internal Revenue, was the second District traffic fatality. She died at 8:40 a. m. yesterday in Emergency Hospital.

Police said Miss Woodward suffered a concussion and internal injuries Friday night, at 16th and Hemlock sts. nw., when she stepped into the side of a car operated by H. Willis Tobler, 48, of 8316 Carrey lane, Silver Spring.

Inquests into both deaths will be held today at the morgue.

Leake, who was on his way to a grocery store when he was struck, is survived by his widow, Mamie; a sister, Mrs. Larry Bruce of Landover, Md.; four brothers,

Texan Claims 384 Degrees For Circle

San Antonio, Tex., Feb. 1 (AP).—In these days of trisecting angles, it's not surprising when someone comes up with a trisection of a circle—but it is eyelifting when Tom F. Black claims his trisected circle contains 384 perfect degrees, not 360.

A carpenter, Black claims 360 degrees is a mathematical monstrosity—and this is his prof:

Halving 160 degrees and each resulting figure, one gets 180, 90, 45—with the final figure some hard-to-calculate fraction.

Black's trisected circle of 384 degrees is divided thusly, 192, 96, 48, 24, 12, 6 and 3—the final figure representing 1 each of his trisecting points.

With his sixth-grade education, Black also discusses the mathematical term of "Pi," commonly used as 3.1416.

Actually, "Pi," used to determine the circumference of a circle, is 3.141592, Black says.

To exactly, minutely and perfectly measure the circumference of

Labor Movement Assailed by Son Of Lloyd George

Hoboken, N. J., Feb. 1 (U.P.).—Earl Lloyd George, son of the late David Lloyd George, Britain's famous World War I Prime Minister, said today the British Labor Government has ended individual freedom in England.

He arrived here for a six-months lecture tour.

Lloyd George, a member of the House of Lords, said "this (the Labor government) is the worst damn government there has ever been since I was born," he declared. "It's most incompetent, most inefficient. The war has been over for two and one-half years and we're worse off than during the war as far as food is concerned. I think the job of government is to govern and not to interfere with the private lives of people."

20 Injured, Fire Threatens Block In Jewish Sector

Jerusalem (Monday) Feb. 2 (AP). Twenty persons were injured and one killed last night when an explosion wrecked the plant of the Palestine Post.

The blast started a fire which threatened to engulf a city block in the heart of Jerusalem's Jewish sector.

Physicians said printers in the pro-Zionist, English-language newspaper suffered serious wounds from flying slugs.

British investigators blamed Arabs or Jewish terrorists.

Officials said the blast occurred after an automobile loaded with explosives drove up alongside the building.

Gershon Agronsky, founder and publisher, was reported to have been in Tel Aviv. Ted Lurie, assistant chief editor, was not in the building.

John Donovan, NBC correspondent, was reported in the Post building and helped rescue at least two men.

Earlier, three heavy explosions were heard in the city when Jews blasted two Arab-owned houses which they said had been used as Arab sniper nests.

An explosion also wrecked a

17 Persons Die In Weekend Fires In East, South

By The Associated Press

Seventeen persons, including 10 children, were known to have perished and three others were believed dead by fires over the week end.

In Raleigh, N. C., five persons—all members of prominent families—were believed to have died in a fire which razed the clubhouse of the fashionable Carolina Country Club during a raging snowstorm early yesterday.

The parents and three small children were burned to death yesterday in a fire near Louisville, Ga.

At Port Washington, N. Y., a mother and three children perished in a fire.

In Paterson, N. J., the explosion of an overheated stove in a tenement flat yesterday killed four children huddled together in a bed.

An employe of a felt mill at [illegible], N. Y., died Saturday in a fire and explosion in the mill.

In Manhattan a rooming house fire killed a male occupant.

Truman Outstays Many Guests at Reception for Him

By The Associated Press

President Truman and Mrs. Truman went to a party in their honor yesterday and hte Chief Executive had such a good time he nearly out-stayed all the guests who are not supposed to leave until he does.

The occasion was a reception given by the Congressional Club.

More than 500 Congressmen and their wives lined up to shake the Presidential hand. This done, instead of leaving as he could quite politely have done, Mr. Truman lingered, obviously wanting to visit. Guests came up to chat.

An hour passed—and wives with dinner to get for families at home and men and women with other engagements began to leave. But the President, who had arrived a few minutes after 4 p.m., stayed on until past 5:30 p. m. Then he followed Mrs. Truman out, shaking hands as he went, and glancing backward.

Catholic Protest Overridden

1.8 Billions Asked to Start U. S. Aid to Public Colleges

By The Associated Press

President Truman's Commission on Higher Education, overriding a protest of Catholic members, yesterday recommended $1,875,000,000 in Federal aid to publicly supported colleges.

This five-year outlay, to help with operating costs and building, was suggested as the start of a program to double college enrollment by 1960. It would be in addition to Federal scholarships and fellowships at public and private schools costing the Treasury another 780 million dollars.

The funds would be used to help States and communities expand school facilities and partly offset the higher cost of making the freshman and sophomore years tuition-free for all students, recommended previously by the commission. Above those grades, the report urged, tuition costs should be cut sharply.

Two Catholic members, objecting to the exclusion of private schools from Federal funds, signed a vigorous dissent. It went to Mr. Truman with the majority report of the 28-member commission.

Msgr. Frederick G. Hochwalt, higher education director of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, and Martin R. P. McGuire, dean of the graduate school at Catholic University, said the

In House Bill

New U. S. Currency Issue Sought

By The Associated Press

Representative Sundstrom (R., N. J.) proposed yesterday a totally new issue of United States currency, to smoke out foreign hoarders of American dollars.

Americans holding present dollars simply would swap them for new ones of the same value, under Sundstrom's plan.

But it would aid the European Recovery Program, said aides of the author, by making foreign hoarders exchange their dollars for currencies of their own countries.

Sundstrom's bill is due for introduction in the House today. He is a member of the Banking Committee.

Would Call in Currency

The measure would direct the Treasury to call in all present currency and "give new currency equal in exchange therefor."

Sundstrom said that $28,567,000,000 in United States currency was outstanding as of September, 1947, and declared:

"No one knows how much of this amount is hoarded abroad by individuals and private foreign business interests. Competent authorities estimate it runs into billions of dollars."

Under Sundstrom's plan, foreign holders of American money would be required to turn it in to the government of their own country within a certain time limit. In exchange, they would receive the equivalent in the currency of their country. These countries then would exchange the old dollars for new ones.

determined. It was expected such a census would require several months to complete.

Meanwhile, Senator Hickenlooper (R., Iowa), a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, said yesterday the Senate would make it clear the United States could at the end of one or more years drop its European Recovery Plan without being accused of bad faith. He said he had been given this assurance by Vandenburg.

"It could, should and would be part of the bill," Hickenlooper declared. "I want it crystal clear from the start that we can pull out after one year or any other period without being accused of bad faith or going back on our commitments. It must be in the law."

President Truman has said he would be satisfied with nothing less than a four-year program.

Gandhi Death Called Violence Signal

Chicago, Feb. 1 (AP).—Sir Mohamed Zafrulliah Khan, Foreign Minister of Pakistan and the Moslem state's representative to the United Nations, said today that "with Gandhi's death it will be difficult to forecast what turn India's destiny will now take."

Speaking on a University of Chicago roundtable broadcast over NBC, the Pakistan representative said the assassination "has become the signal of violence between those whom Gandhi sought all his life to knit into brotherhood."

Indian Leader Firmly Believed In Christ's Precepts

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Reporter

Mahatma Gandhi's death was mourned in churches yesterday, as the problems of religion in foreign lands were reviewed in many sermons.

Clergymen noted that while Gandhi found it religiously and politically unwise to embrace Christianity because of his strict Hindu beliefs, he nevertheless firmly believed in Christ's precepts.

"Gandhi had a wonderful God in which he believed with all his soul," said the Rev. Daniel W. Justice, pastor of Trinity Methodist Church, 5th st. and Seward Square se. He then quoted from a statement on prayer which Gandhi once gave the Associated Press:

"'Prayer had saved my life. Without it I should have been a lunatic long ago. Prayer came out of a sheer necessity. The more my faith in God increased the more irresistible became the yearning for prayer. Life seems so dull and vacant without it.'"

(Gandhi was a personal friend of Dr. E. Stanley Jones, famous Maryland-born Methodist missionary to India.)

Dr. Sylvester C. Michfelder yesterday warned that the United States churches must make more sacrifices or "we cannot hope to win the peace."

The minister, executive secretary of the Lutheran World Federation and Lutheran representative on the World Council of Churches at Geneva, Switzerland, addressed a city-wide Lutheran rally at Luther Place Memorial Church, Thomas Circle.

"Physical aid is not enough," observed Dr. Michelfelder. "We must help them overcome fear with faith, and despair with real demonstrations of brotherly love. It is not enough that we give them Bibles, prayer books, catechisms and churches. We must also help to provide food, clothing, medicine and bedding."

Dr. Bela Udvarnoki, president of the Baptist Seminary at Budapest, Hungary, spoke in the morning at Bethesda First Baptist Church, and last evening at First Baptist Church, 16th and O sts. nw.

At Bethesda Church, he reminded that while more relief material is reaching Europe than two years ago, "it doesn't go as far because the people have been without things and so undernourished so long." He said the 20,000 Baptists in Hungary have more religious freedom than heretofore. Dr. Udvarnoki lost his wife in the bombing of their home, and their 3-month-old child died shortly afterward from lack of nourishment. The seminary also was destroyed in the war.

"The fate of the West lies largely in the East, D. Stewart Patterson of this city, last night told members of Petworth Methodist Church, Grant Circle and New Hampshire ave. nw.

Patterson, vice president of the Methodist Church's general board of lay activities, and executive secretary of the Methodist Commission on Chaplains, has just returned from a three-months trip in the Philippines, China, Japan and Korea. He interviewed Gen. Douglas MacArthur Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and other notables. Said Patterson.

"What happens in the Orient in the years immediately ahead will affect our country and our history for years to come. We are at a time of a new world construction. Peoples and nations have been shaken; foundations—political, social, economic, religious — have been crumbled; molds have been broken. But of the ashes and ruins a new structure of a new order is rising in the Orient."

Youth Rally

D. Stewart Herman, jr., of Harrisburg, Pa., formerly pastor of the American Church in Berlin, who has been serving on the World Council of Churches at Geneva, Switzerland, addressed a rally last night at National Presbyterian Church, Connecticut ave. and N st. nw. It was sponsored by the Washington Federation of Christian Youth as a climax of "National Youth Week."

Dr. Holmes Eulogizes Gandhi, 'Greatest Man Since Christ'

New York, Feb. 1 (NYHT).—An untempered eulogy of Mohandas K. Gandhi as "the greatest man this world has seen since Jesus Christ" was delivered today by Dr. John Haynes Holmes, minister of the Community Church, before 1700 persons in Town Hall.

Dr. Holmes, who returned last month from India, where he had spoken with Gandhi, compared him with Caesar and Willam the Conqueror. Like these two, he said, Gandhi conquered Britain; but unlike them, he used only his simple formula of nonviolence and noncooperation.

"He is the omnipotent conqueror," Dr. Holmes declared, "because he holds the hearts of mandkind forever."

The minister noted the irony "that the supreme practitioner of nonviolence should be the victim of outrageious violence . . . on the threshold of his sublime triumph."

"Now he is dead," Dr. Holmes said, "but Gandhi will still live and exert his influence on the hearts and souls of men."

A bronze bust of Gandhi was placed on the rostrum and decorated with sprays of red carnations and white snapdragons for the nonsectarian memorial service.

the mansion where Gandhi died said the house will be dedicated to some public use "in name of the great saint who is gone."

It is already becoming a shrine. Hundreds visit it daily.

Followers, taking bits of earth from the spot of the assassination, have dug a hole two feet deep and one foot wide. Many rubbed the earth on their faces.

The things that Gandhi loved and used have been placed in the room he occupied. A large portrait of Gandhi rests against a huge bolster on the simple cot where he slept. On the floor nearby is the spinning wheel on which he had spun miles of cotton thread.

Navy Policy Held Big Gain for Negro

Abolition of Racial Segregation Called Possibly War's Greatest Social Advance

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Present U. S. Navy policies governing Negroes are termed a "great gain" for the race in an exhaustive analysis of the Navy's past and present handling of race problems made public yesterday.

The study, prepared by Lieut. Dennis D. Nelson of Washington, a Negro reserve officer, describes the Navy's decision to abolish segregation and integrate the race throughout the service as "possibly the greatest social gain of World War II."

But, declared Nelson, "Application of the policy has not been as good as the policy itself." He is critical of the Navy's failure to draw in qualified Negro doctors, dentists and engineers to meet present shortages and more widely appoint members of the race to commissioned rank.

America, he states, must overcome the feeling of the "colored peoples of the world" that we profess democracy but practice "Jim Crowism."

Open Way for Reds

"The attitudes of our country toward minority groups and those manifested and practiced by its armed forces," says Nelson, "provide ready-made propaganda for the Communist state, and makes possible fertile and sympathetic grounds for the infiltration of Communism.

Nelson's criticism of the Navy's handling of Negroes during most of the war is sharp, in spots. He blames the late Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox for much of this and particularly takes to task the commander of the Negro recruit training station at Great Lakes, Ill., Lieut. Comdr. Daniel W. Armstrong.

Armstrong, son of the noted Civil War general and abolitionist who founded Hampton Institute, Nego industral school in Virginia, is described as backing "Jim Crow" policies, though "reputedly a friend of Mrs. F. D. Roosevelt and presumably a 'friend' and champion of the Negro cause."

Lieutenant Nelson's study was prepared as a thesis for his doctor's degree at Howard University, which he attends at night. He is on active duty in the Navy Office of Public Relations— the only Negro reserve officer still in uniform.

Has Quasi-Official Status

While not an official history, "Integration of the Negro into the United States Navy," has a quasi-official status. The document was put out by the Navy Department as a press release, and Rear Adm. T. L. Sprague, chief of naval personnel, contributes a foreword.

Sprague declares it "an objective and accurate synthesis of available source material," and "a fair and valid appraisal of the Navy's attitude and interest in its Negro personnel."

Nelson is critical of the Army's handling of Negroes, even though the latter base some 1500 Negro officers in active service, compared to the Navy's three. One of the latter is a Regular Navy ensign, one a nurse, and the third the author.

Criticism of the Army is directed at the fact that the latter "since Revolutionary War days has maintained a strict and definite policy of complete separation and segregation of the Negro."

Except for the period between 1920 and 1942ñ however, the Navy allowed mixed crews aboard ships and permitted Negroes in all branches, he reports. Between World Wars I and II, the latter were allowed only to enter the messman's branch—a situation altered during the war.

Coast Guard More Liberal

Nelson finds the Coast Guard "the most liberal branch of the armed services" in its policy toward Negroes. The Maritime Service is said to have a policy of "nondiscrimination," while the Marine Corps gets a less favorable rating from the author.

He reports that the Marines accepted no Negro women and had no Negro officers during the war. The Navy had 165,000 Negro enlisted men, 22 commissioned officers, 70 Waves and four nurses at VJ-Day, says Nelson.

"The Navy is convinced that discrimination and segregation based on race or color, as was formerly practiced in its training, utilization and advancement programs, is fatal to its military efficiency."

But more than "empty declarations" of the Navy's policy are necessary, Nelson states. Urging that "deeds are called for," he proposes:

1. Appointment of qualified Negroes to commissioned rank on a broader scale and in more ratio to the number in enlisted grades, assignment of such officers to positions of responsibility.

Wants ROTC For Negroes

2. Establishment of Naval ROTC courses at Negro colleges. He commends the integration of Negroes into organized naval reserve units, particularly those here and in Nashville, Tenn., as being ahead of conditions in these communities.

3. A program of "continued public education in the role of the Negro in the Navy through Navy publicity.

4. Better indoctrination of Navy officers and men in race relations and the naval policies on the subject.

Nelson's sharp criticism of Commander Armstrong largely was directed at the latter's contentions that the Negro should be assimilated "slowly" into American life, retain his "own culture" and remain separate" from whites.

He declares that Armstrong barred Negro officers from the Navy officers clubs, insisted on segregating Negro recruits from whites, and established art, drama and entertainment classes stressing the achievements of Negroes. The son of the famed abolitionist—himself a trustee of Hampton Institute—required the Negro recruits to sing spirituals on Sunday nights. The southerners liked it, he said, but northern Negros resented the songs as an implied "badge of slavery."

New Panama Canal Urged

By the United Press

Representative Mike Mansfield (D., Mont.) said yesterday that the present lock-type canal through Panama was "particularly vulnerable" to attack by atomic weapons, and that construction should be begun as soon as possible on a new sea-level waterway.

Mansfield was sent to Panama by the House Foreign Affairs Committee to make an inquiry into the circumstances of the rejection by the Panamanian National Assembly of the agreement to extend United States occupancy of defense installations.

In a formal report to the committee, he said he believed differences between the two countries would be ironed out, and that the present site should be selected for a new canal because the "United States has established rights to the Canal Zone through perpetuity."

UMT Called Peril to Free Institutions

By the United Press

A group of 21 prominent persons, including former Gov. Philip F. LaFollette of Wisconsin, claimed yesterday that the Army is endangering America's free institutions by asking for "unnecessary" compulsory military training.

The group, in a survey of military manpower released by the National Council Against Conscription, said the people have not been given the full facts about Army recruiting.

It quoted the Army as maintaining it needed universal military training to supply it with an "immediately available" M-day force "of about 1,750,000 men."

"Yet there are now in the Regular Army and Air Force and in the organized reserve more than two million men."

It said reports that Army enlistments are dropping "give only a partial and there fore untrue picture" of the situation. Actually it stated, the Army is turning down half the men who apply because it has raised the passing mark on its admission test from a wartime 59 to 80.

In addition to LaFollette, according to the council, the group included A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, the Most Rev. John J. Wright, auxiliary bishop of the Catholic Church in Boston, and Representative John H. Folger (D., S. C.).

The survey also criticized the Army for insisting it needs compulsory training "when it has made no real effort to make the voluntary program work."

Wadsworth Predicts Approval of UMT

By The Associated Press

Representative James W. Wadsworth (R., N. Y.), a leading Congressional advocate of universal military training, predicted yesterday that the present Congress will approve it.

Wadsworth said both the Army and the Navy are having difficulty obtaining manpower and the Army will be in a "dangerous" position by next October, when many current 2-year enlistments expire.

Bomb Blasts Paper Plant

Jewish-owned house in the Jaffa-Tel Aviv area.

The explosions came after the British navy intercepted a schooner carrying 280 Jews seeking to enter Palestine without immigration papers. The refugees from central Europe were sent off to Cyprus.

The Stern gang, underground Jewish organization, announced last night in Tel Aviv it had executed a 22-year-old Jewish girl "for treason while cooperating with Arab bands."

London, Feb. 1 (AP).—An authoritative British source reported today increased attempts to "infiltrate Communist agents" into Palestine.

The informant said many agents had been found in the questioning of the 13,000 or more Jewish immigrants aboard the ships Pan Crescent and Pan York which surrendered in the Mediterranean

Foss Leake

Harold and Linwood of Gordonsville, Va.; Elbert of Dallas Center, Iowa, and Alonzo, who is in the Navy, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fulton Leake of Gordonsville.

Miss Woodward, a native of Rochester, N. Y., had lived here since 1929. She was formerly employed as a stenographer at the Treasury Department. Survivors are her mother, Mrs. Ida M. Woodward; a brother, T/Sergt. John Woodward, stationed at Eglin, Field, Fla., and a sister, Mrs. T. H. Clifton of Washington.

Foss was fatally injured at about 8:15 p. m. Saturday in a crash on Route 1, about a mile north of Dorsey rd., Dorsey, Md.

Maryland State Police from the Waterloo substation, about two miles from the scene of the accident, said Foss was a passenger in a car which crashed into the rear of a tractor-trailer truck.

Both the car and the truck were headed toward Baltimore, police said.

Victims Pinned in Wreckage

Police said the car was driven by Charles Deavers, 27, of 334 15th st. ne. Another passenger in the car was John C. Foss, 23, a brother of the dead man. Police identified the driver of the truck as Roland E. Sasser of Mount Olive, N. C.

The Deavers car was a total wreck and its three occupants were pinned in the wreckage. State Policemen Alvin H. Robbins and Aubrey W. Suit used heavy tire irons to pry an opening through which the men could be removed.

The three were rushed to St. Agnes Hospital, Baltimore, in a State Police ambulance. The older of the Foss brothers died there at 11:45 p. m. Saturday. The younger Foss was reported in critical condition with internal injuries, a compound fracture of the leg and head injuries. Deavers, in serious condition, suffered compound fractures of both legs and deep lacerations of the right arm and face.

Sasser, who was unhurt, was technically charged with manslaughter. Police said the same charge will be placed against Deavers when he recovers.

The fourth victim, Clark, was killed instantly shortly after 6 o'clock Saturday night when struck by a Greyhound bus on Route 1, about two miles north of Woodbridge, Va.

Virginia police reported that Clark, a fisherman, was crossing the highway just beyond the crest of a hill.

A sledding accident yesterday, at Olive and Polk sts. ne., sent John Harris, 12, of 1510 Olive st. ne., to Casualty Hospital with a possible concussion and cuts and bruises of the face and head. His condition was reported fair at the hospital.

Police said the boy's sled ran into the left rear wheel of a car driven by Robert E. Ballard, 30, of 4345 Lily Pond dr. ne.

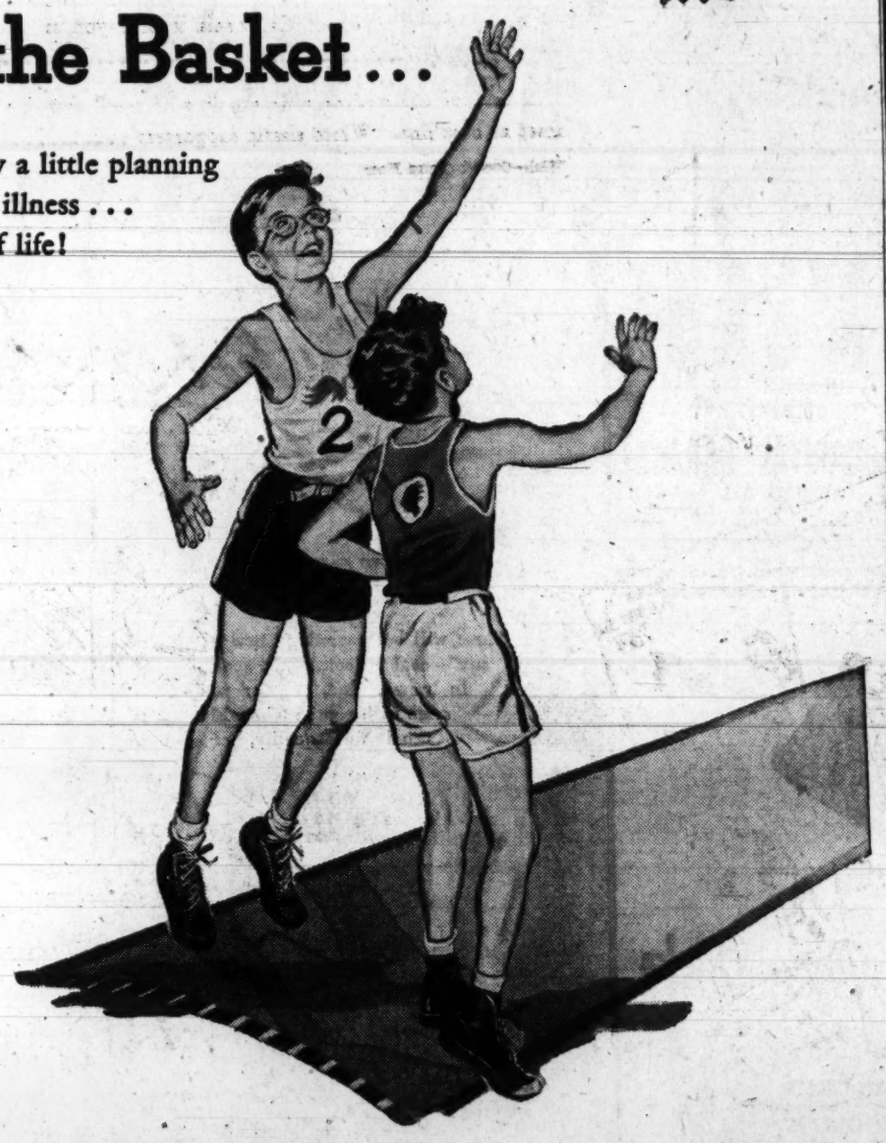
The Boy who Couldn't See the Basket...

A noted authority tells how a little planning can prevent a lot of family illness . . . and let you get more out of life!



by MISS RUTH HOULTON
Director, National Organization for Public Health Nursing

Miss Ruth Houlton

EVERY DAY, in one out of ten American families, someone is ill enough to be in bed—causing untold millions of dollars to be lost from jobs, not to mention the inconvenience and heartaches.

And yet in many cases the trouble probably could have been prevented by proper care!

The case of Johnny Trask is a good example of how, with a little preparedness, a family can avoid a lot of unhappiness.

When Johnny first came to Milldale school (not real names, of course) he thought he might make the basketball team, because probably the basket wouldn't look fuzzy like the one at home.

When the public health nurse checked his eyes at the suggestion of his teacher, Johnny's sight as well as his feelings were saved. An eye specialist found Johnny's eyes were badly in need of attention.

His parents had put aside money for a health emergency. They were able to give Johnny medical care and corrective glasses immediately. And today, a year later, he's the star of the team!

Some Family Health Rules

To safeguard their health, every family should follow these simple rules:

1. Have regular medical check-ups for every member of the family. If caught in time, many illnesses can be prevented altogether. Or they can be checked before they become serious.

2. Get plenty of fresh air, exercise, sleep and the right kind of food.

3. Maintain a safe home: help prevent accidents by such simple precautions as keeping small children away from stoves, labeling medicines; picking up things left on stairs.

4. Avoid arguments at mealtime, when digestions are easily upset—or, better still don't argue. Happy, relaxed people are generally healthier.

5. Be prepared for unexpected serious illness—it may come in spite of your best efforts. Set aside enough money to pay for doctor and hospital if you should need them. Health and accident insurance, and group hospitalization plans, can help you do it. Remember, prevention is cheaper than medical care. But both are cheaper than illness!

How to PLAN for Family Happiness

● Planning for family health is only part of sound money planning. You'll be more likely to have enough money on hand when you need it, if you'll follow these few simple rules:

FOR TODAY... The first thing, for most families, is to take care of the larger fixed items such as rent, taxes, insurance, mortgage and installment payments, etc.

So start by adding up all your fixed items for the year, divide by 52, and set aside that amount weekly.

Also every family should have a "rainy day" fund equal to at least four weeks' income. Set aside a little every week until you have that much. Then you'll know how much you can spend for food, clothing, heat, light, amusements, and so forth.

FOR TOMORROW... We live in a changing world. Family needs and circumstances change . . . living costs . . . taxes. If you have not had your life insurance program reviewed lately, the chances are 2 to 1 that it should be brought up to date.

There are so many ways in which you can use your life insurance, that you should have the life insurance you now own checked to see if it is suited to your needs. This is a service that comes with your life insurance.

The person best equipped to help you with this is the well-trained life insurance agent. Get in touch with your agent, or write your life insurance company. INSTITUTE OF LIFE INSURANCE, 60 East 42nd Street, New York 17, N. Y.

Embarrassing Question

President Truman's refusal to explain at a press conference why he demoted Marriner Eccles was not at all surprising. To have revealed his motives might have been embarrassing. Nevertheless, that unanswered query served a good purpose by calling attention to the public's bewilderment at the removal from the chairmanship of the Federal Reserve Board of an incumbent whom the President has praised and whose policies he professedly indorses.

Usually the reasons for presidential exercise of appointive prerogatives are easily explained. Demotions, shifts, or dismissals are frequently preceded by incidents that provide a clue to subsequent action. In other cases, official interchanges acquaint the public with the reasons for presidential decisions. When, as in the present instance, a change is made unexpectedly without any advance knowledge of the probable reasons, the public naturally concludes that the President has been influenced by ulterior political or personal considerations or else is using his power to hire and fire in an arbitrary fashion that reflects on his reputation for fair dealing.

The people have a right to expect the President to exercise his prerogative of replacing or dismissing important officials only after a careful weighing of their qualifications. The question that the President so brusquely dismissed was asked because there was no convincing evidence to show that Mr. Eccles' demotion was due to any lack of ability or dissatisfaction with his work.

Another Heretic

Dr. Eugen S. Varga, the famous Marxist economist, has been kicked out of his job as head of the Institute of World Economics and World Politics, and the Institute itself abolished. When last heard of, Dr. Varga appeared to be a resident of Moscow's celebrated Doghouse Row, whose previous tenants, as you may remember, have included Bucharin, Zinoviev, Rykov, Tomsky, Radek and Trotsky and whose current residents are said to include the counter-revolutionary musician, Dimitri Shostakovich, and the bourgeois movie director, Sergei Eisenstein.

Dr. Varga, it appears, carelessly placed himself under strong suspicion of being a red-baiting, war-mongering, fascist-imperialist agent of Wall Street because of a report on postwar conditions published about two years ago. In this report, Dr. Varga is said to have expounded, in the formidable idiom of his profession, certain economic prognostications which, to nobody's great surprise, coincided with the then current party line. He is supposed to have said that there is no necessary conflict between Russian economic interest and that of British and American capitalism, that the difference between the two had diminished considerably as the result of wartime conditions and wartime planning, that the democratic powers, so far from enriching themselves as the result of the war, had to an extent impoverished themselves in the common interest, and even that the imperialist powers had ceased to be imperialistic in the old-fashioned sense since they were granting a considerable degree of autonomy to their former dependencies. As far as we can judge, this continued to be the party-line until as late as April 9, 1947, when a good deal of it, especially the business about the possibility and desirability of collaboration, was repeated, ex cathedra, by Comrade Stalin himself to Governor Stassen.

Soon after that, however, the party-line took one of those sudden semicircular turns that are always somewhat embarrassing even to the most faithful comrades abroad, because they involve the necessity of memorizing a new vocabulary in which the fellow-travelers and front-organization members have to be rehearsed. Anyway, on May 8 the American press was accused by the Soviet propaganda machine of having published distorted accounts of the Stassen interview. About a month later a meeting of Soviet economists was convoked to discuss Dr. Varga's report, and there was general agreement that while his professional methods were sound, his conclusions were completely cockeyed.

Whereupon, it is reported, Dr. Varga was summoned before a board of economic experts and asked to explain how he could have fallen into such shameful heresies. Perhaps, if Dr. Varga had said that the report was a forgery concocted by American secret agents, which certain Trotskyite spies had surreptitiously substituted for the authentic report, all might have been well. But Dr. Varga, it appears, had never been able to rid himself of the disgusting bourgeois vice of professional vanity. He insisted that the theoretic bases on which his report had been based were wholly orthodox and correct, although he was willing to put any political interpretation on them that the party in its wisdom might see fit to suggest.

Apparently, the party hierarchs were aghast at such contumacy and arrogance. Even the unspeakable Zionoviev had had the politeness to beat his breast in the dock and to blubber, "I am a fascist dog!" Even the sly and contemptible Radek had had the good manners to confess that he had sold out to the Trotskyites and Nazis. But that, of course, was after they had opportunity to reflect on their crimes.

Home Rule Hearing

Home rule for the people of Washington has been given an effective indorsement by those voiceless citizens themselves as a prelude to the hearings which will open today before a joint House-Senate committee. Seventy per cent of those questioned in a scientifically conducted Washington Post poll spoke up for the right to elect their own city officials. Only 23 per cent voiced opposition. The great majority of both home owners and renters, both white persons and Negroes, both natives and newcomers, are eager to see suffrage restored. As this showing coincides with the unofficial plebiscite on election day, 1946, there is especially good reason to accept it as an accurate reflection of the public will.

The many thousands who wish to assume the full obligations of citizenship have not staged any Boston tea parties or even any parades. But we do not see how this poll can be interpreted to mean anything other than a sustained interest in the creation of a representative local government. The people of Washington favor home rule for the same reasons that Americans everywhere favor it. They wish to control their own municipal affairs, to direct through elected officials the spending of their own taxes, to improve the type of public service they are offered and to feel that they are a part of the great democratic country in which they live.

Several specific provisions of the Auchincloss-Ball bill were indorsed. Those favoring an elected school board outnumber the opponents nearly three to one. The vote for nonpartisan elections was only slightly less favorable. Two features of the home-rule bill proved unpopular—the provisions for dual voting and for a veto of legislative acts of the proposed District Council by the House, Senate or President. These are complicated provisions, however, and they may not have been well understood by the participants in the poll. We think it would be most unfortunate to force a large number of Government employes in Washington to choose between voting in the local District election and retaining their vote for presidential, congressional and State office candidates elsewhere. Dual voting is already operating successfully in some satellite communities. It seems admirably adapted to the problem that will arise with the restoration of local suffrage in the District.

As for the veto power, it is easy to fall into the error of supposing that it would operate against home rule. Actually, it would not. The proposed council would acquire the ordinance-making power and the power to adopt its own budget without any check by Congress, except through the passing of legislation. This is what is customarily meant by home rule. Only when the council might go beyond this and pass legislation of a more basic character than ordinances could the so-called veto be applied. Under the Constitution, Congress could not permit the council to assume such power without retaining an effective check upon it.

We have no doubt that many improvements in the Auchincloss-Ball bill can be made. But local citizens who are interested in improvement of their municipal government would do well to concentrate on constructive amendments. Opposition to a plan so ably drawn is likely to have the effect of opposition on home rule itself and to any reform of the obsolete and inefficient system now operating. What we should like to see is an avalanche of public opinion unloosed at the hearing—an avalanche that would reflect the public will which The Washington Post poll has shown to exist at the grass roots.

Civil Occupation

The long overdue transfer of authority in American-occupied Germany from the Army to the Department of State, now scheduled to take place about July 1, is essential groundwork for the integration of the conquered area with the rest of western Europe. The stumbling block which has made such integration impossible was the duality of direction inherent in War Department control of policy in the enclave, Germany, while the State Department was directing policy in respect of the continent as a whole. No amount of liaison could make the two lines of authority mesh.

No one has more vigorously or more persistently sought this transfer of authority than Gen. Lucius Clay, who, once it is accomplished, will relinquish a responsibility he has discharged with high devotion from the beginning of the American occupation, first as deputy to General Eisenhower, then as deputy to General McNarney and finally as the commander of American occupation forces and United States Military Governor for Germany. He has richly earned the gratitude not only of his own countrymen but of the helpless, beaten people it became his task to govern. For he has discharged this task with humanity as well as firmness and, especially in his difficult dealings with the other occupying powers, has shown immense patience, resourcefulness and diplomacy.

It is no disparagement of General Clay's splendid service in Germany to say that he now needs to be replaced. His sense of responsibility toward the people he governed made him become more and more a special pleader for the amelioration of their misery; and sometimes his pleading was so effective as to make the French, at least, feel that the losers in the war were receiving preference over the liberated. General Clay gave short shrift to France's views concerning the Ruhr or to her demands for a lion's share of the Ruhr coal output. Plainly there is no longer room for such special pleading if the European economy is to be integrated. The major premise of the Marshal Plan is that the resources of the continent will be employed to the best general advantage regardless of national frontiers. If this is to be achieved, there must be an overall direction of American policy which will treat Germany as a factor, an essential factor, in European recovery but not as a special and distinct object of rehabilitation efforts in itself. The State Department is the logical agency for the job.

No Relief From Slums

Denial of the funds requested to get the District Redevelopment Land Agency into operation is a tragic mistake, in our opinion. It is this agency on which the city is relying to make a fresh attack on the disgraceful slums in which upward of 20,000 Washingtonians now live. Its work has long been delayed because of the war. The conscientious citizens who compose the agency have been paying what expenses it has had out of their own pockets and waiting patiently for the day when the great task of cleaning out Washington's slums could begin. Now their hopes and the hopes of thousands of District residents have been suddenly shattered by the unwillingness of the House Appropriations Committee to provide any part of the $3,400,000 needed for the agency's initial projects.

None of the explanations of the committee's action carries conviction. Congress was told that no plans for redevelopment of the areas in question have been completed. It is true that not all of the planning which will ultimately be necessary has been done. But plans for the initial steps are well in hand. The flimsiness of this excuse for inaction is indicated by the fact that the committee also denied the National Capital Park and Planning Commission $61,500 to be used for the making of such plans. Work of this type, the committee also said, ought to give way to "matters of vital importance both at home and abroad." Recognizing the necessity of sacrifice in the interest of the Marshall Plan we can think of few more important local undertakings than relief of the Nation's Capital from the burden of disease, crime, delinquency and blighted lives that results from the housing of human beings in quarters scarcely fit for animals.

More pathetically short-sighted, in our opinion, is the protest of a Negro group that the Redevelopment Agency is planning a "Hitler-like ghetto in the far Northeast section of the District." Because of the acute shortage of housing in Washington, the first steps toward reclaiming the slums must necessarily be construction of new low-rental dwellings on vacant land. Slum dwellers cannot be moved into the street. As soon as a safety-valve of new housing has been provided, however, the plan calls for redevelopment of slum areas. That is the central mission of the DRLA. To be sure, small portions of the land now reeking with slums will be taken for Government buildings, playgrounds and perhaps commercial projects, but most of it will be redeveloped for residential use, with a large part given to low-cost housing. In other words, redevelopment will follow the lines of sound city planning. It would be inexcusably negligent to undertake a large development of this sort on any other basis. Instead of protesting against this constructive program, every civic group in the city ought to be knocking at the Senate door to have the stricken funds restored.

Time And Again

It is to be earnestly hoped that a repetition of all the fuss attending the 1947 hearings will not be necessary in order for Congress to authorize daylight-saving time in the District of Columbia again this year. We believe that a majority of District residents were well satisfied with the extra hour of daylight they enjoyed last summer. This was borne out by a Washington Post Poll conducted after daylight-saving time had been in effect several months. Fifty per cent of the persons questioned said they liked daylight saving "very much" and another 25 per cent liked it "some"; 66 per cent favored it again for 1948.

To this end bills have been introduced in both houses of Congress to permit the District to have daylight-saving time every summer. However, these common-sense measures again will have to overcome the last-ditch resistance of Senator Overton, who last year helped precipitate nearly a full day of debate sprinkled with such nonsense as the effect of daylight saving on the health of Louisiana cows. By way of "counterattack" Senator Overton has now introduced a bill to compel observance of standard time by Government departments and "all businesses affecting commerce" throughout the country. This, of course, would upset a well established custom in many urban areas. We doubt that such an attempt will be taken seriously, though it might be well for District civic groups to be on their guard. One effect of Senator Overton's bill is to illustrate again the ridiculousness of the system that requires Congress to spend time wrangling over petty matters that are properly the concern of the people of Washington. This is as good an argument as any we know for home rule.

White House Balcony

It has been made clear in the press that public opinion is against the proposed erection of a balcony within the south portico of the White House. By and large, public reaction has been actuated by sentiment, as well as support for the Commission of Fine Arts, which has declared itself against the proposed alteration.

The design of the White House by James Hoban, even though based on plates in James Gibbs' book, was an amazingly successful one, and imaginative in the sense that after 150 years it still has the scale and character which make it an eminently suitable dwelling for the President. The one feature that Hoban himself contributed to the design was the semicircular portico of the south elevation.

Thomas Jefferson also influenced the White House design, especially in the use of columns that reached the full height of the building. In 1784 he used them for the first time in an American public building in the Virginia Capitol in Richmond. He frequently employed heroic porticos in his architectural designs, but where upper balconies were required, he usually used two tiers of small columns.

However, in the later, and decadent phase of the classic revival, the device now proposed for the White House portico was adopted and balconies were suspended from the back of two-story columns. Where it was used, this entirely inorganic scheme deprived the porticos of the nobility the designers sought, as the ascent of the columns was interrupted by the structure of the balcony itself and by the dark intermediate shadow that it produced. In the proposed alteration no less disastrous would be the unfortunate position of the pediments over the lower windows, on which the balcony would practically rest.

If Hoban had intended an intermediate balcony he would have designed the building for it, but it is now too late for it to look other than an intrusion. The very whiteness of the building would make it impossible for the balcony to be other than an important feature, both for its structure and shadow. Only the urgent need of it should admit of its construction.

The White House, in spite of its historic importance, should not be treated as a museum and, if new features are needed as time goes on, they should be provided. However, in architecture there is always more than one solution to a problem and, given a free rein, Mr. Delano, the architect, distinguished for his taste and ingenuity, could certainly find one.

Country School

Thanks so much for your interesting article of January 25, concerning the little Negro school in Friendship Heights. First, I must offer congratulations to Mrs. Ruth Gordon White, who teaches these children. I can readily see how Mrs. Ruth Gordon White finds this group "ideal." What teacher, who has to contend with 40 students first and then is lucky enough to be assigned later to a group of only 14, would not find the situation "ideal?"

With news of the Sipuel case and the Browne Junior High strike and many bills before Congress seeking equality for Negroes, is it not time for someone to act to bring an end to this situation. In the Sipuel case Justice Jackson observed: "A law school with only one student wouldn't be much of a school, would it?" I am wondering if an elementary school with only 14 students can be much of a school. What is wrong with these students attending Janney Elementary School at Wisconsin and Albemarle, thereby saving the District money and closing out the little gray stucco building adjoining the Alice Deal Junior High School?

It is indeed a great shock to me, a newcomer to the Nation's Capital, to know that there exists a country school of four rooms, of which one is used in winter, right in the midst of our wealthy citizens.

Truman Tax Plan

Secretary of the Treasury Snyder said the Truman tax plan is the "fairest" and "most equitable" way of making a cost-of-living tax adjustment for families with low incomes.

Snyder also said that extension to all States of the community property principle, whereby married couples obtain lower tax rates, should be given a high priority later on, but should not be adopted now because it would mean a Government revenue loss and because it chiefly affects those with incomes above $5000.

In other words, Snyder only believes in being "fair" and "equitable" now (an election year) to the largest voting group even though it will cost the Government four times more in revenue than the community property tax revision would cost if extended to the smaller voting group.

Music Capital

I agree most heartily with Mr. Paul Hume's articles concerning the need of an opera and a conservatory in Washington.

Since we have definitely passed the stage in which good music was considered just as pure entertainment, Washington should have not only a permanent symphony but also a permanent civic opera and thereby should set an example for the Nation in cultural leadership.

Also, for the functioning of the musical life of a city and of a country, preparation and training of musical talent is of the highest importance. Here, too, Washington as the Capital City should set an example. It should have a conservatory of the highest standards not only to supply the musical life and needs of the city but also to send to the rest of the Nation and the world representatives in the field of good music.

If our Government does not consider subsidizing an opera company and a symphony orchestra to be its responsibility, it might at least recognize the importance of musical training, just as it recognizes the importance of education in other fields, and it might support—at least partially—such an enterprise as a conservatory.

And where are the private sponsors? After all, art galleries and libraries have been sponsored privately. Why not a conservatory? It seems just as important to the cultural life of a city.

"Poor Weatherman"

To be sure, weather forecasting is not for the thinned-skinned, as you say in your editorial of January 28, but it is a tremendously fascinating science and when linked with a true spirit of public service, it can have its moments of great satisfaction and feeling of reward.

It might be said that while some 80 to 90 per cent of the forecasts are accurate in this area, that to miss a real snow or to warn of one and not get it, does hurt; not only the public caught in a traffic snarl or clanking around with chains on dry pavement, but the weatherman himself, who is trying to do his best at a very touchy job.

Here is a suggestion that might be worth trying for the rest of the winter: Let's start with the forecaster's real problem, as to whether or not it will snow and see just what he is up against. As a good example let's take the storm of January 24.

On Thursday night the forecaster had to reach out for the first time and say what it would do on Saturday. At that time a rather complex low pressure system was over the South-Central interior of the country being pressed hard by a cold air mass from the North. From its current position and past behavior, the forecaster decided that some light snow would fall Friday and that the push of very cold air south and eastward would engulf this region Friday night and Saturday. He called for "sunny and cold" and that was an entirely reasonable assumption Thursday evening. However, on Friday the picture began to change (a new disturbance was taking form along the cold front in the Gulf of Mexico), but by Friday evening had not changed sufficiently to warrant a revision of the Saturday forecast.

Right here is where we come to the crux of the matter. As early as Thursday evening, when the forecaster reached out and called for "sunny and cold" for Saturday, he probably would not have entirely discounted any chances of snow, but since these chances were considerably less than 50 per cent (probably 10 to 20 per cent), he called for a good day.

Came Friday and his latest charts began to take on a slightly threatening aspect (the Gulf disturbance was increasing), but developments during the day did not warrant changing the Saturday forecast. However, the percentage figure of chances for snow had begun to rise and by Friday evening were up to, say, 40 to 45 per cent, but since they were still less than 50 per cent, he stuck to his "sunny and cold." At this time he might have been willing to have said something like "some possibility of snow on Saturday," but if all percentage possibility figures were put into words you would get so many "very slight possibility of snow," or "only a bare possibility of snow," that it would not be desirable.

It was at this time (Friday evening) that he prepared the forecast for the Saturday morning Washington Post and omitted the snow on the basis that the chances were less than 50 per cent. In another six hours (the time lapse between his charts) the development in thee Gulf had reached such a stage that the snow possibilities for the District were rising rapidly and he called for snow.

At this point his figure on percentage probability were up to 75 to 80 per cent, there still being some chance that the Gulf storm might move far enough to the east of us barely to skirt this area. As the storm approached within the next few hours the percentage figure rapidly rose to 100 per cent.

Why not try the percentage figure in precipitation probability in The Washington Post. It might make for interesting experimentation. The weatherman will agree that the farther away he is from the day in question, the more difficult it is to say definitely whether or not it will rain (or snow), but he can give you a figure on the chances, in say, percentage to the nearest 5 per cent. Some style of percentage scale could be placed in the weather box and it could be shaded to indicate the forecaster's idea of chances for rain or snow.

Now, how much better it would have been last Saturday if such a display had been carried showing 45 per cent chance of snow. It would have indicated to the public that a decision for or against snow was right near the ragged edge of 50 per cent. D. C. C.

The Great Surrender

OUR THREATENED VALUES, by Victor Gollancz; introduction by Rufus M. Jones. (Henry Regnery Co., $2.50).

Mr. Gollancz's thesis, as I take it, is that the war was lost in a moral and spiritual sense, inasmuch as the victors have in such large part adopted the philosophy of the vanquished. They have repudiated the tradition they had professed to defend, and have thereby invested the world with a psychological climate wholly favorable to the triumph of communism. In other words, they have placed in mortal peril that moral heritage, painfully acquired through centuries, which is instinct in Judaism, Christianity and humanism. The essence of this heritage, says Mr. Gollancz, is the respect for the human personality, which arises from the recognition of its divine similitude and from the faculty of imaginative sympathy which permits us to assume that the core of inviolability which we feel to exist within ourselves must also exist in others and is therefore sacred, whence the necessity of pity and mercy. Thus the test, as Mr. Gollancz tells us, is in the power to perceive and respect the essential humanity of one's enemies, or in the Augustinian phrase to love the sinner while hating the sin.

It is precisely here, says Mr. Gollancz, that the victors have betrayed their cause. Now what gives particular force to this assertion is the fact that Mr. Gollancz is a very prominent English Jew and that he was perhaps the first person of influence in Great Britain or America to agitate against what he considered the stupid and vindictive policies pursued in Germany by the Allied Control Commission, which was attempting to carry out the design agreed upon at Potsdam of permanently pauperizing the country and reducing its inhabitants to a starving helotry. In a collection of letters sent from the British zone of occupation, and afterwards collected into a volume called In Darkest Germany, he made plain to his countrymen what consequences of those policies had been to the vanquished. Here, however, he is more concerned with their consequences to the victors, whose representatives, a year and a half ago, when Mr. Gollancz's book was first published in London, had already constituted themselves in Germany a new sort Herrenvolk. But to Mr. Gollancz the Potsdam agreement was but another stage of the progressive abandonment of values, which had been punctuated by the saturation bombings of the German cities, the atomic bombardments of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, and the betrayal of the Polish allies at Yalta. Still another and later stage was marked by the Nuernberg trials. Here, of course, Mr. Gollancz's principal point is not that the defendants were guiltless of the terrible crimes charged to them, but that their judges were themselves in some degree guilty of identical crimes, and some of them indeed were being perpetrated while the trials were in progress. And it is his fear, which he shares with others, that the net historical consequence of what was done at Nuernberg will be to provide sanction for the law of vae victis and for the principle that justice is another name for power.

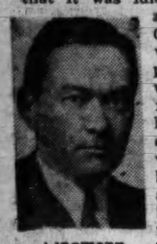
Thus it is with irony as well as with bitterness that Mr. Gollancz recalls the eloquent words in which Mr. Churchill in March 1945 defined the meaning of "unconditional surrender," asserting that "it in no way relieves the victorious powers of their obligations to humanity or their duties as civilized and Christian nations." But if Mr. Gollancz is shocked by the forgetfulness of politicians, he is outraged by the "callous ferocity and self-righteous contempt," of the popular British journalists, who "earned their daily bread by blasphemy," inciting their readers to sadistic exultation over the desecration of Mussolini's corpse, the sufferings of Pierre Laval, the fates of Joyce and Amery. Here our moralist's point seems to be that to the civilized man justice must never preclude the pity to which every human being, by reason of his humanity, is entitled in his extremity.

Some, no doubt, who read Mr. Gollancz's book will perceive in it a sort of sequel to La Trahison des Clercs by his French coreligionist, M. Julien Benda, published shortly after the first World War. M. Benda attacked the priests, philosophers and teachers of his generation for having subverted universal values in the interest of national particularisms. Mr. Gollancz shows to what extremes this betrayal has proceeded. This brings us to his point about the triumph of communism. To him communism is not a political doctrine but "a very fanatical and proselytizing religion," which is opposed in every particular to the religion of the West. "Between these two religions," says Mr. Gollancz, there can be no compromise. They are essentially contradictory; there no meeting place, no half-way house between them. To weaken by a jot or for an instant in our determination to safeguard our values, would be, quite literally, to betray civilization; and I have no doubt that the Communists on their side think the same. Well, then, there is nothing for it but to stand firm and fight it out; by which I am not thinking —God forbid!—of atom bombs, but of steadfastness in act, frankness in speech and above everything an utter devotion in thought and practice to our own ideals, and an heroic effort to spread them by force of example throughout the world. . . . If we lose, and lose we very well may, our struggle will have an eternal reality as something good in the world's history."

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Watchman, What Of The Night?



Lippmann

ANSWERING the question "will there be war?", Mr. Churchill said the other day that it was idle to reason or argue with the Communists. It was, however, possible to deal with them on a fairly realistic basis, and in his experience, they would keep their bargains so long as it was in their interest to do so, which might, in this grave matter, be a long time, once things were settled.

He went on to say that "with all consideration of the facts, I believe it right to say today that the best chance of avoiding war is, in accord with the other western democracies, to bring matters to a head with the Soviet government and by formal diplomatic processes, with all their privacy and gravity, to arrive at a lasting settlement. There is certainly enough for the interests of all if such a settlement could be reached. Even this method, I must say, however, would not guarantee that war would not come, but I believe it would give the best chance of preventing it, and if it came we should have the best chance of coming out of it alive."

NOT NEARLY enough attention has been given to this speech. Mr. Churchill was not speaking, he said, on these matters on the spur of the moment but with a steady stream of thought which he had followed and pursued with a study and experience of these matters over many years. We may add that he was speaking with authority. On the subject of war and peace no man of our epoch speaks with comparable authority, and while Mr. Churchill, like other men, has not been infallible, on the greatest issues he has been the truest prophet of our age.

His conclusion that matters can and should be brought to a head with the Soviet government in order to arrive at a settlement is news of the very first importance.

IF WE ASK ourselves, then, how this could be done, I think we must say that there are many things to be done before matters can be brought to a head with a reasonably good chance of achieving a successful settlement. The ground has to be prepared. The conditions have to be established in which the negotiation of a real settlement could take place.

But we can say, I think, that the various measures which would create those conditions are known, that some have already been taken, some are being developed, some are only being debated. We can go further and say that it is when these various measures are seen as a related whole and are treated as such by the western governments, the ground will have been prepared, the stage will have been set, for the great showdown and settlement.

IN THE LOGIC of this undertaking the first measure is to redress the military balance of power. Thus far we have only maintained a balance of power which is inherently unstable and unsatisfactory. That is to say, we have by the presence of our troops in Europe and by a show of sea and air power in the eastern Mediterranean established a balance of power in which, as Mr. Churchill put it, "the Soviet government have not used their overwhelming power to march westward to the North Sea, the Channel, and the Atlantic Ocean."

But that is not enough. For the Red army cannot remain in the center of Europe if there is to be a settlement and a peace. The balance of power has to be redressed by the withdrawal of the Red army, and the military measures required on our side of the line consist in developing the power to strike at the centers of the Soviet Union. If and when these measures are authorized by Congress, the underlying military condition will have been laid for a settlement in which, as Mr. Churchill said, the frontiers of Asia will not rest on the Elbe.

THE SECOND measure is to adopt the European Recovery Program, and to use it not merely as a device for meeting the dollar deficits of western Europe but as an inducement and as an instrument for the unification of the whole of Europe.

The political union of Europe must necessarily begin in the west. But once the problem of a settlement is truly faced, it will be seen that the United States of Europe cannot have its frontier on the Elbe River but must eventually include the states of eastern Germany, and Austria, and Czechoslovakia, and Poland and Hungary, and the Balkan States.

THE FEDERATION of the whole of Europe, or even of western Europe, does not, however, have to be achieved before the conditions exist for the settlement with Russia. But the nucleus of such a federation must be in sight, and the main decisions must have been taken which would permit a federation of the whole of Europe to be organized.

The crucial decision will be whether Germany is to enter the European system with a centralized government or whether the various German states are to enter it, none bigger or more powerful than its non-German neighbors. If the decision is taken to solve the German problem within a European federation, then the dependence of Poland and Czechoslovakia upon the Soviet Union will have been drastically reduced. They can remain the allies of the Soviet Union but they can cease to be the satellites of the Soviet Union They will be freer than they could be in any other way to develop their trade with western Europe, which is implied in the Marshall Plan, and as trade develops their cultural and political connections will become European, not exclusively Russian.

WITH A military authorization for additional long range power, with the Marshall Plan, with the beginning of a European federation, with a radical decision on the constitution of Germany, and with the promotion of trade and economic mutual aid with eastern Europe, we may have reasonable confidence that the pre-condition of a real negotiation with Russia will have been achieved.

Off The Record

"Sure I wanted it done in a hurry—but not in shorthand."

Use of Private Capital Urged To Develop Latin America

New York, Feb. 1 (AP).—The use of private capital to develop Latin American resources was urged today by foreign trade groups.

But first, they added, multiple tax burdens must be abolished and confidence created.

The National Foreign Trade Council and the Council for Inter-American Cooperation, announced a program designed to accomplish those ends.

Era of Progress Seen

If adopted, the council said, "an era of unparalleled progress will be open to all the countries of the new world."

The views have been submitted to the United States Departemnt of State for consideration at the ninth international conference of American states, which opens at Bogota, Colombia, March 30.

Sam G. Baggett, chairman of the joint councils, said that in his opinion private capital will support Latin-American development if the program is carried out.

The recommendations are designed to implement the commitments which the American nations already have made at Chapultepec and Rio de Janeiro.

Specifically, the councils suggested the American nations assure the following proposals by treaty:

Freedom for citizens of one country to become established in another with no other than the ordinary requirements of passports and visas.

Urge Right To Select Men

Right for af oreign enterprise to select the men it considers most capable, regardless of nationality or the specific task to which they are assigned.

Right of a foreign enterprise to acquire whatever property is necessary for carrying on its activities. Freedom to handle its earnings not utilized in developing the industry or business in the country in which it has settled.

Definite assurance against expropriation, nationalization or any other measure impairing a national's property right, except upon payment of just compensation in the national's own country.

Assurance that foreign enterprises or citizens will be treated in conformity with the standards of international law.

Agreement by each state that it will not impose upon the ships or aircraft of any other more onerous taxes, duties or port restrictions, or restrictions on their cargoes, than those imposed upon their own ships and aircraft.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

5000 Have Fled

IN THESE DARK TIMES, it is heartening that the hope of freedom would always survive, even in the minds of men and women formed and conditioned to servitude. This truth has been amply proven, it can now be disclosed on highest authority, by something very like a mass exodus from the Soviet zone of Germany. Secretly, by stealth and in danger, Russians of every kind and class have been crossing the border into the western zones, ever since the end of the war.

This is no matter of a Kravchenko or two, who finds himself beyond reach of the secret police and chooses freedom because it is fairly easy to do so. The total of those who have fled, according to an estimate from an undoubted source, is above 5000 men and women.

Nor are these French emigrees, scuttling from the guillotine, or Jewish refugees, fleeing from the terror of the Nazi Reich. They have nothing to fear which is not feared by every other citizen of the Soviet state. They have no reason for discontent which is not shared by 180 million others. They are simply Russians, who have been willing to risk their lives and to estrange themselves forever from the land that gave them birth, in order to escape the iron grip of the Soviet system. History affords no parallel for such mass disloyalty. And what makes the phenomenon all the more incredible, all the more meaningful, is the presence among those who have fled of a disproportionately high percentage of those whom the Soviet system has most generously favored and trusted.

ONLY 40 PER CENT of the total are simple Russian soldiers. A full 60 per cent are officers or officials, and of these officers and officials, nearly half have occupied posts above the middle rank of importance. One is a colonel general, from Marshal Sokolovsky's staff. Several others also come from high in the military hierarchy and still others left behind key jobs at the topmost level of the civilian administration of the Soviet zone.

The need for secrecy, which has veiled this strange movement from the eyes of the world, still persists to a degree which makes it hard to give details. It can be said, however, that considerable numbers of the refugees have come from the Czechoslovak rest homes, maintained by the Soviets at Karlsbad and elsewhere. Yet others have come from Berlin, and even from deep in the Soviet zone. A good many at first actually succeeded in escaping with their families.

Countermeasures to halt the exodus were taken by the Soviets sometime ago. In order to have hostages from their personnel in Germany, they ordered home all dependents of the Soviet military government staff and occupation forces. They also required almost all Russian soldiers and civilians remaining in Germany to move into centralized, guarded barrack areas. Yet even these countermeasures have not been successful. The exodus still continues.

In the American zone of Germany, those who have fled must masquerade as expellees from the eastern regions occupied by the Russians and Poles. An agreement for mutual return of deserters was made between ourselves and the Russians at the end of the war. Insofar as he was able, Gen. Lucius D. Clay has not broken the agreement. No such agreement controls the British, and a larger proportion of those who have fled have passed into the British zone. And already, substantial groups have been permitted to move onward, out of Germany, to South America and elsewhere.

ALL THESE FACTS are likely to be denied, by General Clay quite honestly, by the British authorities for convenience and by the Soviets to save face. (Marshal Sokolovsky has constantly pressed for power to bring back those who have fled, to judgment and to death, yet even while insisting that he must have this power, he has never admitted the extent of the exodus.) No denials, however, can alter the truth of the facts as set forth. If anything, this report underdescribes the drama of this new underground railway from slavery to freedom.

As to the drama's meaning or moral, it should be drawn with care. It is too easy to forget what has now been proved beyond dispute, that the staggering total of more than a million Russians, recruited on Soviet soil, fought for the Nazis in the army of General Vlasov. Nor were these easy turncoats. Battles of Russians against Russians were among the bloodiest and most terrible of the war. Yet the victory of the war went, in the end, to the Soviet state.

On the other hand, this phenomenon of the exodus from the Soviet zone, like the recruitment of the Vlasov army, clearly implies a deep inner weakness behind the imposing, monolithic Soviet facade. And in the present world contest, that gives grounds for hope. The Soviets will triumph over weakness, disunity and disorder. But they must eventually come to terms if they are confronted with firmness, unity and strength. Therein lies the historic American task.

Wallace Sees No Plotting By U. S. Reds

Columbus, Ohio, Feb. 1 (AP).—Henry A. Wallace said today he "has not seen evidence to substantiate the charge" that American Communists want to gain control of the Nation by force.

The former Vice President, in a speech opening his Ohio third-party presidential campaign, asserted:

"Any Communists who support the Independent ticket will be supporting our program, not the Communist program. I am not a Communist or Socialist or Marxist of any description, but I find nothing criminal in the advocacy of differing economic and social ideas."

Makes Pledge Challenge

He challenged President Truman and "other candidates for public office" to sign a pledge refusing support from groups which stifle civil rights or advocate violent overthrow of the Government.

"The most frequent charge made against American Communists is that they advocate the violent overthrow of the Government of the United States," Wallace said. "I have not seen evidence to substantiate the charge, and I do find a Supreme Court decision that this conclusion is unwarranted."

"But," he continued, "If this is the Communist program, it most certainly is not ours."

Predicts Red-Baiting

Charging that the coming campaign "will see the most extensive use of Red-baiting in history, with possible exception of Adolf Hitler's use of this political weapon," Wallace challenged Mr. Truman and other candidates to join him in the following pledge:

"I shall not knowingly accept the support of any individual or group advocating the limitation of democratic action for any other individual or group; nor the support of any individual or group which would restrict the civil liberties of others for reasons of race, color or creed; nor the support of any individual or group advocating the violent overthrow of the government of the United States."

Wallace told his supporters "Red-baiting" charges will be tossed at them, "not because we are Communists, but because we are attacking entrenched interests; because we believe that it is possible to make peace with Russia."

At a press conference, Wallace was asked if he would accept the Democratic vice presidential nomination and run with Mr. Truman.

"No," he replied.

Not in Oregon Primary

Portland, Oreg., Jan. 31 (AP).—Oregon Democrats supporting Henry A. Wallace for President announced tonight they would halt plans to place the third party candidate in the Democratic presidential preferential primary in this State.

Nick Chavoie, chairman of Oregon Democrats for Wallace, said the withdrawal action was in accordance with the wishes of Wallace that nominating petitions not be filed.

De Valera Rule at Stake In Irish Poll

Dublin, Feb. 1 (AP).—Many a rugged Irish rebel thought he'd never see the day, but it's here—an Irish political campaign with virtually no electioneering pot-shots at the English.

The dominant question in Wednesday's general election is whether rangy, 65-year-old Prime Minister Eamon de Valera will lose control of the government after nearly 16 years in power.

The main threat is 44-year-old Sean MacBride.

His Clann na Poblachta (Republican Party) won surprising victories last fall in Dublin and Tipperary. De Valera, smarting from the defeats, dissolved the Dail elected in 1944 and called for a new vote of public support.

Army Doctors Find New Drug to Combat Typhus

By the United Press

The Army Medical Department yesterday announced discovery of a new drug for combating scrub typhus. It said it "may mark one of the important landmarks in medical history."

Dr. J. E. Smadel, Army Director of virus research, will fly to the Malay states early this spring to test the drug on native plantation workers who have been dying by scores.

The drug is called chloromycetin. The Army said it is the only weapon thus far discovered that is highly effective against rickettsiae—organisms causing such diseases as typhus.

Typhus is carried by mites or fleas, which infect rats. When the flea bites a human being, it injects the virus into his blood stream.

The war forced abandonment of many big plantations in Malaya and heavy brush overgrew them. Big populations of infested rodents thrived in this brush.

Workers sent in to clear the plantations have suffered a heavy mortality rate, the Army said.

Whiskey or Bread?

The Answer Rests With the 27 Men on the House Banking and Currency Committee

They Can Act TODAY and Save Millions of Bushels of Grain Urgently Needed to Feed the Hungry Abroad!

Whiskey distillers are free to resume full production because this Committee voted 12 to 9 against reporting out the grain-saving bill for a vote by the House to permit the President to continue allocation of the use of grain by distilleries during the present world-wide food emergency.

Control expired January 31, at midnight. The bill S1842, continuing allocations for the month of February, was unanimously passed by the Senate.

There is still time to act before distilleries use up millions of bushels of grain they do not need—grain which is vitally needed to feed the starving and undernourished of Europe.

We appeal again to the 27 members of this Committee to reconsider their decision and to meet today and report out this bill for action by the House.

We believe public opinion is overwhelmingly in favor of this conservation of grain during the food crisis. We believe that the bill's passage in the House, following unanimous Senate approval, is assured, if the Committee, which now controls its fate, acts today before it is too late.

We Renew Our Appeal to Congress for the Hungry

The following excerpts are from testimony given before the House Banking and Currency Committee on behalf of the Friends Committee on National Legislation last Tuesday:

Much of the world is hungry. Uncounted millions of children are suffering from malnutrition. The people of Europe and Asia look to the United States to help, knowing that while we cannot meet all needs, we can and ought to help generously and sacrificially in this period of world distress. Food grains can be shipped abroad quicker and cheaper than other kinds of food, and must form a large part of the bulk of our aid this year.

The major relief problem now is to get cereals abroad, primarily wheat. But wheat and corn compete for livestock feeding in this country and the total supply is far below what is needed for shipments abroad and what could be fed to livestock here. World production of bread grains and rice per person in this crop season is 13 per cent below the average of the years 1934-1938.

The desperate need for shipping grain and other food abroad this winter and spring is attested by American Friends Service Committee workers in France, Germany, Austria, Poland, and Hungary.

Our Government first aimed at shipping 570,000,000 bushels of grain abroad. Now it seems the goal has dropped to 500,000,000 bushels.

The distilling industry now is being asked to reduce its use of grain. It is estimated that one bushel of wheat will make 60 loaves of bread. Even operating at a level of 2½ million bushels of grain per month, which the Secretary of Agriculture proposed and the industry rejected, means using the equivalent of 150,000,000 loaves of bread per month. So far, the distilling industry has contributed little to this conservation program.

We have just been reading of widespread strikes because of lack of food in the American zone of Germany, where we are supposed to be inculcating democracy in the minds of the German people by American occupation. And this in the face of stocks of whiskey on November 30, last, of 461,000,000 gallons in warehouses.

The people of the United States eat about 800,000,000 bushels of wheat, corn, oats, barley and rye as food. So the approximately 50,000,000 bushels of grain used by the distilling industry represents about the number of bushels of cereals eaten by 9,000,000 American citizens as bread, breakfast foods, and so forth. Conceivably, it would be the equivalent of what a much larger number of Europeans will receive on their reduced rations.

For these humanitarian reasons, we therefore support the continuation of allocation controls, not because it is an adequate program at all, but a small step toward feeding a hungry world.

Browne School Strike Ends; Two Suits to Decide 'Issues'

contained school units instead of the three (Browne Junior High School and Blow and Webb annexes) to which the pupils have been assigned since December 1.

The plan will be put into effect by the Board of Education at the earliest possible date after completion of Richardson School. Schools to be used are Thomas, Merritt, Blow, Webb and Browne.

However, 11 classes attending elementary school at Merritt must be transferred to the new Richardson School to make way for the incoming Browne students. The Board of Education's committee on buildings and grounds will inspect the Richardson School this morning.

Move in Tomorrow

If they approve, furniture will be moved in today, and Merritt pupils will start their class work there tomorrow. Dr. Hobart M. Corning, school superintendent, said yesterday there is little doubt that the Richardson School will pass inspection.

Main objection parents had raised during the strike was that their junior high school children had been assigned buildings designed for elementary use and that the children were required to move back and forth every day between the annex buildings and the main building.

OF COURSE PSORIASIS destroys any woman's "DRESS-ZEST"

What attractive woman can find pleasure in choosing gowns when ugly psoriasis lesions force her to dress for concealment instead of to increase her charms? If this is your problem, try SIROIL. It has done much for many other women who faced a similar predicament to your own. SIROIL tends to remove the crusts and scales of psoriasis which are external in character and located on the outer layer of the skin. If or when your psoriasis lesions recur, light applications of SIROIL will help keep them under control. Applied externally SIROIL does not stain clothing or bed linens, nor does it interfere in any way with your daily routine. It's worth a trial, particularly since it's offered to you on a two-weeks'-satisfaction-or-money-refunded basis.

exclusion has "dangerous implications."

"The commission's report predicts — and without regrets — the gradual elimination of those private colleges and universities which are unable to keep pace with their publicly endowed competitors," their dissent said.

The dissent also said legislation such as was recommended might open the way for Government use of the schools "to promote its political purposes."

The majority report argued that any school accepting public funds should also accept "the right of the people as a whole to exercise review and control of the educational policies and procedures of that institution."

"Such acceptance by privately controlled institutions would tend to destroy the competitive advantages and free inquiry which they have established and which are so important in providing certain safeguards to freedom," it said.

The commission acknowledged that its plan for great expansion of public colleges "may make it extremely difficult for many private institutions to survive."

The report is the fifth in a series of six under the general title "Higher Education for American Democracy."

Yesterday's report proposes a Federal appropriation of 53 million dollars for the 1948-49 school year to help meet operating expenses of colleges. The appropriation would be increased annually by 53 million dollars through 1952-53 as the schools expand, for a total of 795 million dollars.

At that time, the commission said, the Government should restudy the problem to ascertain the Federal help needed to bring enrollments up to 4,600,000 by 1960. Enrollments now total about 2,300,000.

For needed new buildings and facilities, the commission proposed annual appropriations of 216 million dollars for five years, for a total of $1,080,000,000.

Heavy Snow Delays Travel

Cape Hatteras, brought heavy snows to the northern border of North Carolina, southern and western Virginia and parts of West Virginia.

Florida trains arriving at Union Station yesterday from the South via Richmond, Va., were generally three to four hours late, with several six to seven hours behind schedule. Bus service to and from some southern sections was temporarily halted as the snowstorm followed on the heels of a sleet storm in some sections.

In Virginia, Richmond received 9 inches of snow; Blackstone, 17; Gordonsville, 14; Lynchburg, 13; Roanoke, 10; Pulaski, 10; and Norfolk, 6. Warrentown, N. C., had a 12-inch snowfall. In West Virginia, Huntington, Charlestown and Clarksburg received from 6 to 7 inches and Elkins, 11.

Extreme western sections of Maryland received some snow, with an inch reported at Front Royal and two at the Patuxent Naval Station.

Coldest spot in the Nation yesterday was Canton, N. Y., where the mercury skidded to 23 degrees below.

Although temperatures rose from sub-zero levels in many parts of the country, thousands of families from the Rocky Mountains to the Atlantic Coast had difficulty keeping their homes heated because of oil and natural gas shortages.

Philadelphia's gas works had only five days' supply of fuel oil on hand to generate gas, and the city requested the Maritime Commission to provide tankers to move 250,000 barrels of oil into the city.

Warmer temperatures in Tennessee, however, freed thousands of motorists delayed by ice and snow-covered highways for the past two weeks. The majority of them were Florida bound.

In Detroit the Ford Motor Co., which manufactures its own gas, piped 15 million cubic feet into the Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. system for use in the Detroit area, where 200,000 workers are idle. About 30,000 steelworkers and miners are idle in the Pittsburgh area.

Twelve walked away—

What happens to people who survive the most merciless and most melodramatic of all accidents—the airplane crash? Have you ever wondered? Have you ever wondered how you would act—what you would do?

High in the Alps—in the blue-cold cabin of a C-53's broken fuselage, twelve men and women found the incalculable answers.

By all means buy the February Atlantic and read "Marooned in the Clouds" Marguerite Gaylord Tate's stirring account of one of the most spectacular of all air disasters—a disaster from which twelve walked away... yet in which a mother, deep in the night, relinquished her son to the world.

And here are four more reasons why the February Atlantic will be eagerly read by the largest number of subscribers and newsstand buyers in its 90-year history:

Where is it leading us? —"The Rivalry of Nations" by Walter Lippmann is the leading article in the February Atlantic. It will stir up discussion in many parts of the world, profoundly influence the thinking of the men who work day and night to make the rivalry of nations friendly.

Sex in the best sellers — "This Thing Called Love" is wittily appraised by Bergen Evans, author of that shrewd blast at all follies: "The Natural History of Nonsense."

We are Jews, and ...—You will be intensely interested in one of the best autobiographical narratives the Atlantic has ever published. "I Changed My Name" by an anonymous author is a timely story as frank as his tough friend's comment: "How do you like being a liar?"

And an Atlantic "First" — "The Last Day" is a first story by John Craig Stewart, a young Southerner of rare promise. Four Atlantic "firsts" won places in the O. Henry collection of 1946 — three in 1947.

Is there a new Atlantic? — Definitely. There's a new Shepler cover in color. New typography. New departments such as the series of Atlantic Reports—Accent on Living—Charles J. Rolo's, The Readers' Choice—Edward Weeks' Peripatetic Reviewer—and others.

You really wouldn't want to miss the new Atlantic. Get your copy at your newsstand today and settle down to one of the most pleasant experiences of your reading life. A few pages and you'll understand why the new Atlantic is the most thoroughly read magazine among opinion-forming people in America.

Heidelberg Selected For Headquarters

Military Aspects of U. S. Occupation To Be Diminished Under State Dept.

Frankfurt, Feb. 1 (NYHT.).—Headquarters of the American forces of occupation in Germany will be moved from Frankfurt to Heidelberg by June 30, with resulting diminishing emphasis on military aspects of the occupation, it was learned here today.

Lieut. Gen. Clarence R. Huebner, chief of staff, will leave about the same time.

When the State Department assumes control of the occupation July 1, the remaining troops will engage in routine police operations.

Speculation here over who will take the place of Gen. Lucius D. Clay, the American military governor, is that it may be a civilian.

Frankfurt will be capital of the new "ersatz" government of "Bizonia."

Berliners Fearful Of Currency Reform

Berlin, Feb. 1 (AP).—Berliners are fearful and certain of a coming currency reform. They are passing money around at a speed which sometimes wears numbers off the paper marks.

The city is apparently on a mad hunt to convert paper money into personal property or Allied money. In three weeks the price of an American dollar jumped from 180 to 360 marks on the black market.

The military exchange rate of the mark, which was worth 40 cents before the war, is 10 to the dollar in the U. S. zone.

American officials disclosed recently the U. S. Treasury had printed new currency for both occupied Germany and Korea, to be issued in the event of continued failure to agree with Russia on a peace settlement.

Meat Price, Shortage To Be Debated on Air

Price and shortage of meat will be debated by four speakers over Station WOL and the Mutual Broadcasting System at 10:00 to 10:30 p. m. tomorrow night on the "American Forum" program. Speakers will include Allan B. Kline, president, American Farm Bureau Federation, and Senators Ralph E. Flanders (R., Vt.), John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.) and Hugh Butler (R., Nebr.).

Two Groups Named to Help Princeton Raise Wilson Fund

Princeton, N. J., Feb. 1 (AP).—Two committees to advice Princeton University in its campaign to enlarge the school of public and international affairs as a memorial to the late President Woodrow Wilson was announced today by Dr. Harold W. Dodds, university president.

Named on an honorary committee were President Harry S. Truman, former President Herbert Hoover, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, and Bernard Baruch.

Among the members of an active committee are James V. Forrestal, Secretary for Defense; Governor Alfred E. Driscoll; John Foster Dulles, representative to the United Nations; Robert Lovett, Undersecretary of State; Norman Armour, assistant Secretary of State; and Charles Evans Hughes, former Chief Justice of the United States.

Others are Sumner Welles, former Undersecretary of State; William L. Clayton, former Undersecretary of State for Economic Affairs; Joseph C. Grew, former Ambassador to Japan; Walter E. Edge, former Governor of New Jersey; Arthur Krock, chief of the Washington Bureau of the New York Times; and United States Senator H. Alexander Smith (R., N. J.).

Also in the group are seven diplomats who served under Wilson; John W. Davis, James W. Gerard, Hamilton Fish Armstrong, Henry P. Fletcher, Hugh Gibson, Arthur Bliss Lane, and Allen W. Dulles.

Princeton seeks to double the public affairs school's endownment of $1,500,000, and to raise an additional $500,000 for a new building. The school will be named the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs. Wilson was Princeton's thirteenth president.

Since its establishment in 1930, the school, under Dana G. Munro, has trained men for careers in Government. A new purpose will be to prepare men for business positions, with an understanding of the objective and operation of Government.

Why Not Revise His Play Here?

By Richard L. Coe

FATHER GILBERT V. HARTKE,
Director, Speech and Drama Department,
Catholic University.

Dear Father Hartke:

I don't know whether you've seen Irwin Shaw's column in the New Republic about the quick failure of his latest play, "The Survivors," but there's something in it on which you both might get together.

"Somewhere in the middle of rehearsals," Drama Critic Shaw reports, he and his collaborator, Peter Viertel, discovered they wished to rewrite the script almost entirely.

"The theater today," Shaw goes on, "in one respect at least has a great deal of the quality of a conveyor belt in a factory. Once the work begins, it moves in an inexorable rhythm toward the set moment at which the finished product must be taken off the line and sold.

"This may be all very well for the automobile and often enough it is even acceptable for a play, but there are times when the rigid six weeks between the first rehearsal and the opening date are fatally constricting.

"If I were a producer I would rack my brain to find a method of introducing the invaluable elements of leisure and reflection into the production of a play, somehow incorporating the costs for this additional time into the original budget, in a wild attempt to stop, when necessary, the menacing, steady movement of the conveyor belt."

IT SEEMS TO ME, Father, that Shaw's dreamy project is right up your department's alley. Why don't you hit him with the idea while he's hot on it? Tell Shaw and Viertel to rework their play as they wish and then invite them down to help your lively department put it on.

There certainly must be some merit in their idea, for Brooks Atkinson gave it a fine report and the perceptive Wolcott Gibbs respected it, though "The Survivors" lasted only a week.

Well, there you are, Father. It's just an idea which I hope you'll think about. Your students would be learning a good deal about playwriting and producing; a respected playwright would have the benefit of a system he's advocating.

R. L. C.

WHILE WE'RE ON the subject, Father Hartke's department has just received a gift of over 5000 theatrical books from Clare Boothe Luce . . . This will be known as the Clare Boothe Luce Collection and will be housed in a special room at the university. . . . Some of Mrs. Luce's unpublished manuscripts are included and some of the volumes are the rare sort which will make valuable source material . . . The colorful Clare is hoping that other American Roman Catholics will be inspired to make similar donations to the department's library.

"DID YOU MARRY your blind date?" asks a contest sponsored by the Warner and station WOL. . . . The writer of the best letter, in 100 words or less, on "Why I Married My Blind Date," will have a New York weekend at the Pennsylvania . . . Letters must be postmarked no later than Saturday midnight . . . More details on WOL from 9:30 to 10 a. m. . . . Yes, it's in honor of the Warner's next, "The Voice of the Turtle."

ANOTHER LOCAL CONTEST is one to find a gal blues singer for the Windsor Room . . . Daily auditions from 3 to 4:30 are under way these afternoons through Thursday . . . But if you're below 18 or over 30, don't give it a second thought.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

TOM CLARK, the Attorney General says sportswriters are important people, and the funny thing is, he may be right. He's having 'em in from all parts of the United States today, along with the sports broadcasting people, to renew the drive against juvenile delinquency by channeling the kids' interests toward sports and away from crime.

POVICH

So he's asking the sportswriters and the radio people to give him and the FBI and the police a lift with the program on the theory that any kid, given the opportunity to play, would rather steal second base than steal a car.

The Department of Justice has all the figures to prove, to its great conviction, that the boys, and girls, who get into trouble are mostly those who didn't get a fair shake in facilities for play. Leisure is bad for kids; that's when they invent trouble, Clark's experts tell us.

Last year he cited a convincing example. Among all the inmates of one house of correction, there was only one kid in the place who had played football or baseball.

CLARK'S IDEA IS that the sportswriters can throw their weight around, and open up facilities for play that are now available but unused; that they could bring the sports heroes of the country a lot closer to the kids by promoting personal appearances among the kids, and excite them toward athletic careers of their own. A pretty good start was made last year when sports editors across the Nation, notably in Cleveland, New Orleans, Indianapolis, Washington and San Francisco promoted kid leagues, established baseball, basketball and football clinics and brought the kids close to their heroes whose pictures they had been seeing in the papers.

They'll show statistics today at the Department of Justice to prove that a down-curve in juvenile delinquency is in direct relation to increased and organized athletics for the kids of the community. They'll cite New Orleans, where the Times Picayune conducts a far-flung program of organized sports leagues, to prove that delinquency can be curbed under looseness of wartime conditions in a big seaport town.

BASEBALL COMMISSIONER A. B. Chandler is lending a hand with the program as are the two commissioners of the professional football leagues, Bert Bell and Admiral Jonas Ingram. They perceive the do-good aspects of the campaign. They'll attend today, to offer the help of their officers and their leagues to the Justice Department's program of broadening sports interest among the kids.

Big league baseball has a boast also, and the pro football leagues can be proud, too, of the high level of behavior they demand from their athletes. The kids who finally make it know what is expected of them; that there is no place in the big leagues for cheats, or thieves, or the scoundrelly minded.

A major league ball player is one of the best credit risks in the country, for example: baseball doesn't countenance bad debts. Any creditor with an honest claim against a ball player can always collect it, merely by notifying the commissioner, who directs the club owner to take payments out of the player's salary. Too many offenses and the ball player is out of the league.

IN WASHINGTON a few years back, the police walked into Turner's Arena during a night of amateur fights, and grabbed a 17 year old boy who had broken out of a West Virginia reformatory a year before. He was just going into the ring to fight in the finals of the 145-pound class. They delayed their arrest and let him fight.

Investigation brought out that at the reformatory he was known as a bad kid. But during a year in Washington, he had found a job, and discovered he liked to box. He liked the whole idea of being part of the boxing team of a southwest neighborhood club, and for a year he had been going straight. The police got him probation. He came out of the service and is still fighting in the amateurs.

The Police Boys Clubs do a nice job with the kids in the cities where the clubs are organized. Fear of the cops is replaced by respect for the cops. As it was pointed out not long ago, "it's ideal when you get the kids running toward their friends, the cops, instead of away from 'em."

Fordham Loses, NYU, Columbia Unbeaten

By Murray Rose

New York, Feb. 1 (AP).—Only two major college basketball fives—New York (13-0) and Columbia (11-0)—still were unbeaten today.

Plenty of action was seen across the Nation last night in the first heavy program since the boys started hitting the books instead of the rims some two weeks ago.

And the loudest crash was heard in Syracuse, where the Orange handed Fordham's hitherto-unsullied Rams a solid, 78-65 walloping. It made Fordham's record 11-1.

Columbia has been idle since January 17. NYU only had one game, defeating Brooklyn College Friday, 70-46.

Kentucky's Win Impressive

Both run into Tartars this week. Columbia catches Fordham on the rebound on the Rams' court Saturday night. NYU hits the road to meet Boston U. Thursday and Temple at Philadelphia Saturday.

Temple (10-4) will be tough. The record-busting Owls, who painted Kentucky, Muhlenberg and La-Salle with their first defea nipped tough St. John's of Brooklyn, 51-50, in Philadelphia last night. They're still smarting from the 64-41 shellacking they took from NYU in New York December 30.

The big game Saturday was played in Chicago's Stadium. There Kentucky's well-balanced five hit for 39 per cent of its shots and trounced dangerous DePaul 68-51.

It was Kentucky's eleventh conquest in succession and made its record, 18-1, it also was the Wildcats' first win in the stadium and their second triumph over DePaul this year. It also was the first time in six years that DePaul ever lost twice in one season to one team.

Aggies Snap Back

On the same bill, Oklahoma A & M (15-2), beaten 32-31 by DePaul Thursday, came back and whipped Chicago Loyola, 43-35.

Adolph Rupp's Kentuckians are out to prove themselves the best in the country. They'll get another chance to boost their claim Monday in South Bend, when they invade Notre Dame's field house for the top game of the week.

Notre Dame (8-4) has won 37 straight games at home in five seasons. This is Kentucky's first visit to South Bend since 1942 and the Irish hope to be very inhospitable from the scoring standpoint. Notre Dame met Kentucky at Louisville last year and came home nursing the wounds of a 60-30 shellacking.

Conference races at a glance:

Ivy League—Columbia and Cornell 3-0 each, Princeton, 2-0.

Southern Conference — North Carolina 6-0, North Carolina State 5-0, George Washington 10-2.

Southeastern Conference — Tulane 8-0, Kentucky 3-0, Tennessee 4-1.

Big Nine—Michigan 3-1, Wisconsin 3-2, Illinois 4-2.

Big Seven—Kansas and Kansas State 3-0 each.

Missouri Valley—Oklahoma A. and M., 3-0; St. Louis, 2-1.

Skyline Six—Brigham Young, 5-1; Utah and Denver, 3-2, each.

Southwest Conference—Baylor, 6-0; Texas and Arkansas, 4-0, each.

Pacific Coast Conference, Southern Division—California, 4-0; Northern Division, Oregon State, 5-2; Washington State, 4-3.

The two remaining unbeaten teams among the smaller schools kept their records perfect. Potsdam (N. Y.) (7-0) was idle but busy Rocky Mountain College Zoomed its mark to 24-0 by tumbling Carroll of Montana, 61-42.

Swedes Still Leading in Olympics, U.S. 5th; AHA Hockey Team Thrashes Italians, 31-1

ST. MORITZ, SWITZERLAND, Feb. 1 (AP).—Apologies, handshakes, a flash snowstorm and a 31 to 1 hockey triumph by the United States marked this third day of the hectic fifth winter Olympics.

Ironically, the day's lone United States victory, over Italy, was scored by the Amateur Hockey Association sextet which is shunned by the United States Olympic Committee and was made in a sport that currently isn't on the official program.

In the sports that did count the Americans couldn't score. The Scandinavians, as expected, dominated.

Reider Liaklev, a skinny Norwegian, triumphed in the 5000-meter (3⅛ miles) speed skating in eight minutes, 29.4 seconds. Ray Blum of Nutley, N. J., was the first American, with 8:54.4 for seventieth place.

Ken Henry of Chicago, Sonny Rupprecht of St. Louis and Dick Solem of Chicago, were further back. The Americans, however, had to skate during the unexpected snowstorm. Additionally, Blum complained of an old back injury.

Gordon Wren of Winter Park, Colo., made the longest ski jump of the day—224 feet 9 inches—but his form was off and Sweden's Sven Israelsson won and Wren's poor finish in yesterday's 10 kilometer (6¼ mile) cross-country ski run kept him in twenty-ninth place behind Finland's Heikku Hasu in the Nordic combination. Hasu is the first non-Norwegian winner of the event in history with a 15-point margin.

After three days of competition, Sweden led the various nations with 32 points, computed on a basis of 10-5-4-3-2-1 for the first six finishing positions.

Norway was second with 30½, Finland was third with 21, Switzerland fourth with 18 and the United States fifth with 14¼. Belgium and Holland each have three points, Great Britain two, Italy one and Canada one fourth.

All the handshakes and one of the apologies came in the lop-sided hockey.

Coach John B. Garrison of Lincoln, Mass., said he permitted his charges to pile up the score against Italy because it might mean the title for the United States team.

If the orphaned hockey competition should end with teams deadlocked for first place on a won-lost basis, total goals will decide.

Alexander's 264 Takes Tucson Golf, Ties Record

TUCSON, Ariz., Feb. 1 (AP).—By shooting the best round of golf in his career, Stewart (Skip) Alexander, Mid-Pine, N. C., blazed past some of the biggest names in golf today to vault from a seventh place tie to win top money in the $10,000 Tucson open.

In winning his first major tournament since turning pro four years ago, Alexander tied the 72-hole record for the courset set by Jimmie Demaret of Ojai, Calif., in 1947 of 264.

He also tied the 18-hole record of 62 set by Herman Keiser, Akron, Ohio, and established a new 9-hole record of 29, six-under-par for the outward nine.

Bobby Locke, Johannesburg, South Africa, started out today with a one-stroke lead over Ed Furgol, Pontiac, Mich., and Jimmy Hines, Tucson, and an odds-on favorite to grab first prize money of $2000.

Locke Falters on 16th

Locke blew his chance to tie Alexander when he went two over par on the 392-yard 16th hole at a time when the pressure was greatest.

Locke came up to the fatal sixteenth, three under par and very much in the running, but ended with 69 for a total of 268 tying for third place with Vic Ghezzi of Kansas City, Kans., and amateur Frank Stranahan, Toledo, Ohio.

John Palmer, Baden, the current Western Open champ, who tied the course record of 62 yesterday, finished today with a six-under-par 64 for a 72-hole total of 265 in undisputed possession of $1400 in second-place prize money.

Chandler Harper, Portsmouth, (Va.), ended with sixth place money, carding a 202-67—269.

Furgol, Hines Slump

Two tournament threats, Furgol and Hines, ran into continuous trouble today after starting out on the last 18 holes one stroke behind Locke. Hines had a three-over-par 73 today for a total of 273, while Furgol ballooned to a 200—75—275.

Demaret, who won the tournament two years running, departed for San Antonio, Tex., with a dismal total of 209-71—280.

Lloyd Mangrum, Chicago, Ill., finished deadlocked with Al Zimmerman, Portland, Ore., with a 270, but remained the top money winner to date in 1948.

Stranahan outclassed the rest of the amateurs and a majority of the pros by shooting consecutive rounds of 68-66-66-68—268.

Well, Let's Win, We've Got the Anthem

St. Moritz, Switzerland, Feb. 1 (AP).—If the United States should win a title in the fifth Olympic Winter Games, "The Star Spangled Banner" will sound out loud and clear in the stadium above the Engadine Valley.

"The phonograph record we had sent from the United States never did arrive," said J. Lyman Bingham of Chicago, in charge of all supplies for the United States teams. "A radio station here located a record and we are set. All we need to do now is win something."

Adams Joins Dodger Farm

Outfielder Tommy Adams, who played three years of varsity baseball at Anacostia High School, before he was graduated last June, yesterday signed to play for the Brooklyn Dodgers' farm club in Valdosta, Ga., of the Class D Georgia-Florida League.

A left-handed batter and thrower, Adams hit more than .300 all three seasons at Anacostia. He is 19, 5 feet, 11 inches and 175 pounds.

Rex Bowen, Dodger scout instructed Adams to report to training camp at Vero Beach, Fla., March 10.

He is the second Washington boy to sign with the Dodger organization in two days. Huston (Tex) Jones, who graduated from Calvin Collidge High last Thursday, signed Saturday and was assigned to Greensville, S. C., of the Class A Sally League.

Detroiters Prevail In Michigan Meet

Sheboygan, Mich., Feb. 1 (AP).—Detroiters skated off with all but three of the titles here today in the Northern Michigan speed skating championships as Babs Kastings, Edmonton, Alberta, squeezed in to take the senior women's crown and North American champion George Kyle of Saginaw waltzed away with his midget boys' division.

Defending men's senior titlist Al Dimmer of Detroit won two of five races in the top men's division but failed to place in any others and shared the men's title with the veteran Jimmy Thompson, also of Detroit, who placed in three events to gain the deadlock at 60 points.

Miss Jarvis Paces St. Martin's Blues

Marylin Jarvis scored 20 points to lead her St. Martin's Blue team to a 32-17 victory over St. Francis de Sales in a St. Martin's Girls League basketball game yesterday.

In other league contests, St. Martin's Whites downed St. Anthony's Blues, 32-24, as Chuckie Perry poaced the winners with 17 tallies and Holy Comforter edged St. Anthony's Gold, 22-21, with Joan Creamer leading the winners with 18 points.

Two-Man Match Added to Wrestling

Fred Corona and Gus Rapp will team up for a special two-man match against Marver Mercer, a Reading, Pa., newcomer, and Lou Farino on Wednesday night's wrestling show at Turner's Arena.

In the feature attraction it will be Dave Levin, the former titleholder, against Dutch Rhode, of Camden, N. J., while in the semi-windup, Don Lee, will take on Francois Miquette.

N. C. State and North Carolina Clash for Conference Lead

Richmond, Va., Feb. 1 (AP).—At least a couple of Southern Conference coaches—North Carolina's Tom Scott and North Carolina State's Everett Case—faced what may be showdown week in the 16-team circuit's basketball race today with a good case of the jitters.

Scott's Tarheels were leading the Southern Conference derby with seven loop triumphs in as many outings, and Case's "Hoosier Hotshots" boasted five wins without a spanking to hold down the runner-up position.

For weeks now, the two quintets have been riding along in those two slots. One or the other will have to give ground Tuesday night, however, for the two Carolina fives face each other in Memorial Auditorium at Raleigh, N. C.

Pack Is Fat

Scott, who admitted at Chapel Hill today that he'd seen State in action a couple of times anyway, described the Wolfpack players "as fat as a bunch of deer."

Case, whose Wolfpack has stacked up 18 wins and 2 losses compared to Carolina's 15-2 record, seemed a little surer about his club's chances.

"We've lost any advantage we might have had since our gym has been condemned and we've had to move all our home games to the auditorium," Case explained. "We feel we have at least a 50-50 chance of winning.

We're Matched

"I've seen Carolina only once this season—against Wake Forest. They've got a very good club, and with such fine rebound men as Paxton and (Sherman) Nearman in the lineup, they'll match our height and ability under the basket."

Case said that "it should be a great game between two great teams. The winner will certainly emerge as the favorite to win the Southern Conference title and possibly a berth in one of the big postseason tournaments in New York City."

If State gets by the Tarheels, the "Hoosier Hotshots" will have only a nonconference game with Georgetown to think about the rest of the week. Should North Carolina take the game, Scott and the Tarheels will have to worry about Saturday night's battle with an old rival—Duke's just so-so Blue Devils.

Raney Reported Resting Comfortably

Harvey (Red) Raney, Washington Lions' center who was injured in last Friday night's match with the Hershey Bears, was resting comfortably at Garfield Hospital yesterday.

Raney suffered a concussion of the brain and fractured skull as the result of a bad fall in the first period.

Youngsters Box Tonight At Turner's

Three eight-rounders involving some of the youngest of Washington's fistic hopefuls feature the regular weekly boxing program at Turner's Arena tonight with part of the proceedings going to the March of Dimes Infantile Paralysis Fund.

Of prime interest will be the first bout in more than a month for 20-year-old Puggy King, Foggy Bottom bantamweight whose last outing was a knockout by Jimmy Cooper. Before that King had run up a string of five first-round kayoes and earned draws in his other two matches.

Tonight King faces Young Lee Q. Murray, a Baltimorean named after the heavyweight, in one of the eights. Others bring together Red Gaddis and Billy Proctor, and Art Bethea and Walter Rowan.

Gaddis will be making a return appearance after defeating Kid Alexander on last week's card. He'll be meeting a respectable foe who has won four of his recent bouts.

Bethea, whose chief claim to fame is that he lost to Lavern Roach last year, has started a new winning streak and faces a puncher who won eight matches in 1947.

A five-rounder between Toby Reed of Baltimore and Washington's Kid Cravette, meeting for the second time, will round out the evening's warfare with two four-round bouts.

Maxim, Belloise, Yarosz, Sadler Box This Week

New York, Feb. 1 (AP).—Numerous contenders in several weight divisions will see action this week on a heavy national boxing program.

Among the top rated fighters slated for punching parties are Heavyweight Joey Maxim, Featherweight Sandy Saddler, and Middleweights Steve Belloise and Tommy Yarosz.

Maxim, the clever Clevelander, embarks on a national tour which he hopes will lead to a shot at the heavyweight crown. Tomorrow night he faces Bob Sikes of Little Rock, Ark., in a 10-rounder in Sikes' home town.

Also on Monday Saddler of New York journeys to Holyoke, Mass., for a 10-round engagement with Charlie Noel of Brooklyn

Belloise, the belting Bronxite who is gunning for either Champion Rocky Graziano, Tony Zale or Marcel Cerdan gets a breather against Brazil's Oswaldo Silva in a Miami, Fla., 10 Wednesday.

Yarosz of Pittsburgh will tangle with O'Neill Bell of Detroit in a Detroit 10.

Quattrocchi Aiming at National Title

Andy May Become Best in Area History

By Roger Wolbarst
Post Reporter

A STOCKY LITTLE Maryland boxer bids fair to become the greatest college fisticuff artist ever turned out in this area.

His name is Andy Quattrocchi and although only a sophomore at Maryland, he has already compiled a remarkable record. In 10 bouts over last season and this, he has kayoed eight opponents.

He belts his foes into submission with either hand. And his body punches are just as damaging as his vicious hooks to the head.

He had his toughest bout of his college boxing career last Friday against Doug Ellwood, undefeated captain of the Louisiana State University team.

Andy carved out a clean-cut decision. The final gong saw Ellwood helpless on the canvas, robbing Andy of a knockout.

His next goal is Charles Davey, Michigan State's national 135-pound champion, in this year's Nationals. Andy would have to give 5 pounds out of his normal weight class to face Davey, but that doesn't worry the little Terp belter.

He thinks he's got the punch to beat any man near his size and feels it might as well be Davey, since he's the champ.

The 21-year-old New York lad, first came to the attention of Coach Heinie Miller two years ago, when the Terp boxing coach received a letter from Syd Fischer, coach of the Camp Le-Jeune Marine Corps boxing team.

The letter described a Naval Hospital corpsman who was knocking out his opponents with monotonous regularity. Moreover, the letter said, the boy wanted to go to college.

Miller arranged for Andy to enter Maryland and Terp boxing opponents have been sorry ever since.

A physical education major, Andy is a good student. Although a quiet lad, he sheds his shyness on boxing trips. On those occasions he and Ken Malone, Terp heavyweight, keep the rest of the squad in high spirits with their comedy routines.

Andy is also an expert gymnast, specializing on the parallel bars. This strenuous exercise accounts for his fine physique and lightning reflexes.

"Andy had several faults when he came out for boxing," Miller said. "He had a habit of moving straight back instead of retreating to one side or the other. And when he went sideways, he limited his movements to one direction.

"His worst fault, however, was losing his temper. When he got clipped hard, he would go wild and attempt to annihilate his opponent with wild swings. Now he keeps his head and he's much more dangerous."

His rivals have found this too true. Last year he kayoed opponents from Army, South Carolina, North Carolina and Catholic University. He broke his hand in the first round while fighting against Kings Point, but won an easy decision anyway.

That broken hand put him out for the season, but this year his hand is well again, as is evidenced by knockout victories over opponents from Michigan State, South Carolina, Army and C. U.

28 Contests Scheduled On Friday

Making up for last week's lag because of mid-year exams, the Washington area high school basketball teams take part in a record 62 games this week.

The three big days are Tuesday with 20 games, Friday with 28 and Sunday with an attractive doubleheader planned for the National Guard Armory.

On Tuesday, only Coolidge of the eight interhigh teams is idle. Roosevelt and Central, the two teams tied for first place in the public high series, face warm-ups for their Friday league encounters. Roosevelt entertains Bladensburg, Md., and Cntral is host to Mount Vernon of Alexandria.

St. John's Meets Eastern

Two other games that should prove interesting Tuesday find St. John's, winner of 11 out of 12, invading Eastern, and George Washington of Alexandria, winner of 8 out of 10, tackling McKinley Tech at Tech.

On Friday, there are, of course, the usual two interhigh doubleheaders at the Armory. In the 3:30 p. m. bill, Western plays Tech and Central faces Anacostia. In the night doubleheader, Wilson meets Eastern and Coolidge tests Roosevelt.

There is a possibility that the Central Anacostia tilt will be moved to the night doubleheader replacing Wilson-Eastern. That's so that Roosevelt and Central will have an opportunity to defend their joint occupancy of first place on the same bill, and therefore attract a bigger turnout.

Blair Battles BCC

In other important games Friday, Montgomery-Blair and Bethesda-Chevy Chase battle each other for the Montgomery County championship at Ritchie Coliseum in College Park, and Bullis Prep, once-beaten in six games, journeys to Allentown, Pa., to face the strong high school team of that city.

Then, on Sunday, one of the largest crowds to see a scholastic basketball program in this city, is expected to turn out at the armory at 2 p. m. to watch a Catholic High doubleheader. In the first game, St. John's plays the strong Benedictine High of Richmond, Va., quint. And in the second, Gonzaga faces the same Mount St. Joseph's team of Baltimore that holds the only victory over St. John's this season.

Pennock Rites Today

Kennett Square, Pa., Feb. 1 (AP).—The body of Herb Pennock lay in state today in the American Legion Hall in this peaceful Chester County town.

The hosts of friends accumulated in nearly 54 years by the Squire of Kennett Square streamed past his bier and many hardened baseball men had tears in their eyes.

Pennock died in New York Friday of a massive cerebral hemorhage. He will be buried tomorrow after private funeral services.

Messages of sympathy came to Pennock's widow in a seemingly unending flow.

Meanwhile, Bob Carpenter, the youthful president of the Phillies who made Pennock his general manager when he brought the club late in 1943, said he hasn't given any thought to naming a new front office boss.

"Herb's death," said Carpenter, "came as so much of a shock that baseball has been shoved back in my mind."

Warner's 72 Points Pace High Scoring

The 25-point performance of Anacostia's Wally Warner last Friday against Western widened his lead in the interhigh scoring race to 14 points over his closest pursuer. Warner has scored 72 points in four league games for an average of 18 points per game.

In second place is Wayne Brizendine of Western, whose 18 points against Anacostia last Friday enabled him to take second place away from Jimmy Pantos of Central. Brizendine has scored 58 points. Pantos, who registered 14 against Coolidge Friday, has 55. Brizendine, who has drawn the most foul shots, 39, has made good the most times from the foul stripe with 16.

Warner leads in field goals with 31. Billy Paugh of Roosevelt has the best foul-line average with five out of six. Glenn Johnson, also of Roosevelt, has the dubious distinction of having committed the most personal fouls, 16 in four games. However, he has yet to foul out of a game because he committed only four in each.

Navy Wins 'Dimes' Bowling

The Navy Department League duckpinners beat out the War Department League in the Mile-o'-Dimes benefit bowling matches which ended early yesterday morning at Penn Recreation Center.

Navy won three of the four matches in the presence of Chief of Naval Operations, Vice Admiral John D. Price, and Lieut. Gen. Raymond S. McLain of the War Department.

Hydrographic, the Navy champions, beat Reproduction AGO, the War titleholders, 1740-1671, with Gene Hargett of War featuring with a 170 and 404, while the Navy All-Stars licked the Army All-Stars, 1760 to 1712, with Harold (Pat) Higbie, and Jim Falck, both of Navy, leading the assault with 138-390 and 138-384, respectively.

In the singles match Higbie beat Hargett, 354 to 319, and in the doubles the War duo of Johnny Parise and A. Henton won from Bill Molloy and Falck, 897 to 606.

A total of $72.19 was turned over to the Polio Fund.

brushed in today's fray, they stopped and shook hands. And when Arnaldo A. Fabris of the losers accidentally banged Fred Pearson of Beverly, Mass., above the left eye with his stick, it was the Italian players who rushed to pick up the American and helped to patch him up.

Bruce Cunliffe of New York City; Ralph Warburton of Cranston, R. I.; Bruce Mather of Springfield, Mass.; Robert Boeser of Minneapolis and Robert Baker of Thief River Falls, Minn., each scored five goals.

The United States team now is in fourth place behind three unbeaten teams, Czechoslovakia and Switzerland, 3-0 each, and the Canadians, 2-0. Uncle Sam's record is two wins and one defeat.

In today's play the Czechs defeated Poland, 13 to 1; the Swiss blasted Austria, 11 to 2; and Canada blanked Great Britain, 3 to 0. The Americans are idle tomorrow.

The other apology was made by J. Lyman Bingham of Chicago, who is in charge of supplies for all American teams.

He told Dr. Albert Mayer of the Swiss Organizing Committee, to drop the inquiry into the attempted sabotage of the United States bobsleds last Thursday night.

The sterring wheel of one sled was loosened, the cowling of another had been damaged and the hand grips of a third had been battered by a hammer.

Bingham said Dr. Mayer felt the United States bobsledders were blaming the Swiss. "That isn't the case at all," Bingham, "I understand things like that happen among the bobsledders all the time."

However, the Americans continued to post a guard at the bobshed.

Only Two Disturbing Incidents

Actually, there were only two disturbing incidents today and only one of those happened in view of the spectators.

As Aake Seyffarth of Sweden, holder of the world record for the 5000-meter skate race, zipped toward the finish he was brushed by a photographer who stepped onto the ice for a picture. The Swede, who finished seventh in 8:13.7, lost precious seconds getting back into stride.

The other incident involved the judges of the Nordic combination. They couldn't decide who was second to Hasu. At first they picked Sven Israulsson of Sweden. They then decided on another Finn, Martti Huhtala. They conferred again. Finally they announced officially Huhtala was the runner-up.

U. S. Coach Offers Alibi

Corey Engen of Huntsville, Utah, was sixteenth in the Nordic with 346.8 points.

Of 38 ski pilots on the hill, Wren tallied second highest points for jumps alone—220.2, with Engen third. Israulsson beat out Wren by 1.7 points in this competition total.

Ralph Townsend of Lebanon, N. H., was thirty-third with 376.7 points, compared to the 288 points that brought Wilber Lewin of Canada, the thirty-seventh spot.

Henry was eighteenth in the 5000 with a clocking of 8.56; Ruprecht was twenty-first in 8:58.4 and Solem twenty-seventh in 9:10.4.

Pete Miller of Chicago, coach of the U. S. skaters, said that the snowstorm and the Olympic style of racing against time, handicapped his team. However, Liaklev was one of the last to take the ice and he had to skate through a blanket of snow.

It was the second straight skating triumph for Norway. Finn Helgesen yesterday won the 500 meters (547 yards) in Olympic record time.

Wren Falls on First Turn

Wren fell on his first jump in the combination but escaped injury. The competition's longest leap came on his second try and he closed with a third effort of 216 feet 6½ inches, but his clumsy form cost him the gold medal.

Gustav Allan Lindh, a Swedish army officer, led the field in the shooting phase of the winter pentathlon by hitting 20 bull's eyes for 194 points to boost his country's lead. He was second in yesterday's ski race. No Americans are listed in this competition.

Although trailing fifth for team honors, the United States gets its best chance at first place in an event tomorrow—men's figure skating.

Dick Button, 18-year-old Englewood, N. J., ic artist, is a slight favorite over Hans Gerschwiler, world's champion from Switzerland. Button defeated Hans for the European title at Prague last month and commented, "I hope I can do it again."

American prospects also look good for high honors in the women's downhill ski race, in which another teen-ager, 15-year-old Andrea Mead of Rutland, Vt., leads United States hopes.

Also on tap tomorrow are three hockey matches, women's figure skating, downhill skiing for men and 1500-meter (metric mile) speed skating.

Armed to Run At Hialeah

Miami, Fla., Feb. 1 (AP).—Two of 1947's best race horses—Calumet Farm's Citation and Armed—are scheduled to compete Monday in a $5000 six-furlong allowance race at Hialeah race course.

Nomination of the two racing stars will give Hialeah a full week of top grade racing, including two $10,000 Handicaps and a $5000 Breeders Stakes for 2-year-olds foaled in Florida.

Citation, selected as the top 2-year-old of last year, will be making its debut in Florida this year. The young stablemate of mighty Armed is ranked as favorite on the winter book for the Kentucky Derby.

Armed, chosen as the horse of the year in 1947 and world's second-ranking money-earning race horse, will be making its third appearance.

Gil Dodds Given Wanamaker Trophy for Record Mile

New York, Feb. 1 (AP).—Gil Dodds, who established a new world indoor record of 4:05.3 in taking the Wanamaker Mile at the Millrose Games last night, was named unanimously today as the winner of the Rodman Wanamaker International Trophy for the outstanding performance at the forty-first annual meet.

The 29-year-old pounding parson from the Boston Athletic Association, who won the same race and the same award a year ago, thus becomes the second man in the history of the trophy to have his name inscribed for a second time on the coveted international cup.

Although the handsome trophy contains such names as Paavo Nurmi, Glenn Cunningham and Cornelius Warmerdam, the only other to appear twice is that of Charles Hornbostel, Indiana's great middle distance star who was voted the honor in both 1934 and 1935.

But the famed Wanamaker mile never had seen a performance like the one which Dodds put on last night to the approval of 15,000 screaming fans in Madison Square Garden.

Dodds, undefeated on the boards since 1943, made five of the best milers this country has to offer look like schoolboys as he won by 70 yards to chalk up his twenty-fifth consecutive indoor triumph and twentieth in a row at the distance.

STYLE-PACING TEN STUNNING MODELS

Is the 144-hp. Model 71 ROADMASTER 4-door Sedan shown above (150 hp. when equipped with Dynaflow Drive). This same body type is also available on the 115-hp. SUPER and the 110-hp. SPECIAL. The trim 2-door Sedanet is likewise available in all three of these series, while the sleek-lined Convertible and the all-purpose Estate Wagon are both supplied on ROADMASTER and SUPER chassis.

White sidewall tires, as illustrated, available at extra cost.

Buick takes the bows—with ten sparkling models, a new Vibra-Shielded ride, sensational Dynaflow Drive, 30-odd new advances

THE curtain's up—the show is on—and look what's in the spotlight, taking all the bows.

It's Buick—this bonnie, brawny Buick, highway fashion plate of 1948, and easily the most distinguishable car on the road.

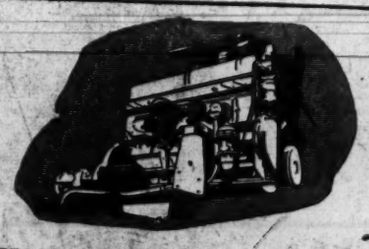
It's taking bows for the eye-appeal of its ten stunning models—for their size, steadiness, and rich, fine finish.

It's catching bouquets on the brilliance of Hi-Poised Fireball power, now so utterly smooth you hardly know the engine's running — and now provided in separate horsepower ratings for the sprightly SPECIAL, the quick-stepping SUPER—and two for the rich and regal ROADMASTER.

It's getting applause on Safety-Ride rims, pillow-soft tires, coil springing all around, on bodies newly sheltered against travel noise—on no less than 30 new features.

NO GEARS EVER SHIFT IN DYNAFLOW DRIVE*

In Buick's new Dynaflow Drive, sliding gear transmissions and complex gear-changers are made unnecessary. You simply set a selector lever and step on the gas. The power plant does the rest, adjusting itself to varying driving conditions with utter smoothness. You start up—accelerate—climb hills—cruise—stop—start up again—all without touching the selector lever.



REASON FOR THE VIBRA-SHIELDED RIDE

Placed with scientific exactness, 7 fat cushions of special composition cradle the engine so as to control its frequency thus keeping it "out of tune" with vibrations that might come from other parts of the car. The result is to shield car occupants against firing pulsations, cut road noise, make engine sensation almost imperceptible.

But most of all it's winning curtain calls on two major advances no other car offers.

One is the sensational new Dynaflow Drive,* through which something close to driving magic is made yours.

Here there is no gearshifting, even by automatic devices under the floor boards. Here for the first time the power plant does what gears used to do—giving you smooth fast starts, silken acceleration, effortless cruising at the touch of your toe on the gas treadle.

No clutch pedal—no sliding gears—no halt, hesitation, jerk or click. Just silken ease and matchless simplicity.

The other star feature is the Vibra-Shielded ride. It's the first ride in which the driver and passengers are fully shielded against vibration build-up—against the piling up of little vibrations into big ones that leave you tired and tense.

Engine sensation becomes almost imperceptible—road noise cut to the minimum. Every model in the line gets a new measure of smoothness, quiet and ease that make Buick more than ever the car wanted for its all-round satisfaction.

Buick dealers everywhere are showing this fashion plate of '48. See it. Look into it. And get your order in!

*Optional at extra cost on Roadmaster models

BUICK'S the one and only WITH ALL THESE FEATURES

DYNAFLOW DRIVE — simplest, smoothest, easiest car propulsion yet. (Optional, Roadmaster series)

TAPER-THRU STYLING — distinctive, tapering car-length fenders set a fashion of standout beauty.

HI-POISED FIREBALL POWER — valve-in-head straight-eight engines in four power ratings, now cradled to new smoothness.

SAFETY-RIDE RIMS — check heel-over on turns; better car control, peak mileage and lower tire pressures.

QUADRUFLEX COIL SPRINGING — matchless buoyancy from a soft coil spring on each wheel.

FLEX-FIT OIL RINGS — in super-precise cylinder bores. New oil savings.

VIBRA-SHIELDED RIDE — smooth, fatigue-free ride from scientific curbing of vibration build-up.

RIGID TORQUE-TUBE — in sealed chassis; protects moving parts, takes all driving thrust.

SOUND-SORBER TOP LINING — insulated for new "conversation tone" quiet. (Super and Roadmaster Models)

DUOMATIC SPARK ADVANCE — vacuumatic plus centrifugal action assures exact ignition for peak engine efficiency.

Twohy, Retired Judge, Is Newest Member Of Loyalty Board

CIVIL SERVICE: James Twohy of Santa Monica, Calif., is the newest member of the Civil Service Loyalty Review Board. He's a retired State judge. Two other Government West Coast attorneys have been invited to serve on the board.

AGRICULTURE: It will soon lose another high-ranking employe. Leslie A. Wheeler can be expected to resign soon as chief of the Office of Foreign Agricultural Relations to join State's foreign service.

STATE: It isn't generally realized, but the Mundt-Smith law which gives legal authority to State's Voice of America activities in effect places the 1500 present employes in that work on probation. Here's why:

The new law requires the FBI to make new loyalty investigations of all present employes within six months, and no employe can be sure of his job until he has an FBI clearance. Most of these State employes have been investigated at least once, and some of them several times.

Furthermore, the act requires the FBI to investigate applicants for Voice of America jobs before they can be placed on the payroll. Incidentally, this State unit is planning a broad expansion of both personnel and activities.

MARITIME: At the end of this month the authority of the Maritime Commission will end to sell surplus ships, and to operate and charter some 1300 ships. Congress has refused to heed the President's request for a 16-month extension of these powers.

About 500 people are employed on these activities. But contrary to reports, no employes will be laid off immediately if Congress fails to act. Instead, all the people on this work will be assigned to liquidating Maritime's war activities, a job that will take at least six months.

NOTES: About 6500 applicants for typist and stenographer jobs will be examined here this week by Civil Service. The tests start today . . . BILL McDONALD is acting chief of Navy's departmental personnel division. . . . The Senate Committee on Expenditures today will start hearings on the effectiveness of the Congressional Reorganization Act. . . . The House Expenditures Committee will begin hearings Thursday on the President's reorganization plan to build up the Labor Department. Chairman Hoffman will lead the opposition to the proposal.

GENERAL ACCOUNTING has issued a new series of reports blasting the Maritime Commission. One report deals with Maritime's contract with the owners of the Gripsholm, the ship used to bring interned Americans back home during the war.

The report says that the Gripsholm was docked for a full year in New York harbor, and that during that entire time Maritime paid the owner full hire at $3500 a day, or a total of $1,267,000.

PARKING: Another report deals with the Government-owned ground that is used as a parking lot in the rear of the old District Building on 14th st. nw. And it reveals, in effect, that GAO is responsible for the higher parking charges on that lot. The new and higher rates were the subject of strenuous employe protests a few months ago.

The report said the lot operators had paid only $3800 a month rent, and that their profits were "unreasonably high." GAO stepped in and ordered Public Buildings Administration to advertise the lot. The agency informed Congress:

"The new agreement providing for a rental return to the Government of $11,300 per month for a period of two years, or $7500 more per month than formerly received, clearly indicates a previous lack of care and diligence in protecting and subserving the interest of the United States."

BOOK: A new book, CONGRESS IN ACTION, is out. It tells clearly, in both words and pictures, how the Congress operates. The authors are: GEORGE H. E. SMITH, staff director of the GOP policy committee, and FLOYD M. RIDDICK, also of the Senate staff.

NOTES: The President has suspended until June 30 the law that requires exams for permanent promotions of Regular Army officers in its Medical, Dental, and Veterinary Corps.

2 Symphony Premieres Presented

By Donald Engle

In the last two Sunday afternoon concerts by the National Symphony, Dr. Kindler and his musicians have rendered a notable service to the musical life of our community and to the cause of American music, in giving us world premieres of two symphonies by Robert Ward and George Wargo.

Dr. Wargo, for 11 years a member of the viola section of the orchestra, was given a warm welcome back, in the role of conductor for his own Symphony No. 1.

The three movements are filled with an abundance of musical ideas, with more emphasis devoted to rhythmic exploitation than to development of his thematic material.

In the second movement, the composer particularly shows his skill in handling orchestral colors in a highly effective manner, with muted brass and string accompaniments punctuated by short solo fragments from a muted trumpet, cello, and viola.

A sparkling scherzo, clever waltz, and pregnant fugue all turn up in the last movement, but with scarcely a sufficient stamp of finality to round out the work completely. The orchestra responded to Dr. Wargo's incisive direction with whole-hearted enthusiasm, resulting in an exciting first performance.

Guest artist for the afternoon was the young American violinist, Arnold Eidus. Recent winner of the Thibaud International Competition in Paris, Mr. Eidus gave us an exuberant performance of the Mendelssohn Concerto, leaving no doubt that he has a complete mastery of his instrument, and the artistic temperament and innate musicianship to become one of the great artists of our time. The balance between orchestra and soloist was much better than it had been at times in the past, but the ensemble in the outer movements left much to be desired.

Dr. Kindler opened the concert with Bach's "Come, Sweet Death," as a memorial for both the late Herman C. Bakemann, oldest former member of the orchestra, and the great Indian leader, Mahatma Gandhi, who died on the same day.

Cogswell Plays Many Roles As Rent Control Director

By James E. Ficken
Post Reporter

(Second of a Series)

Rent Control Administrator Robert F. Cogswell smiles whenever he sees umbrellas.

They remind him of the matron who nearly used such a tool to punctuate her opposition to a rent increase decision. Cogswell spent an hour proving the case with records, placating her and keeping his scalp intact.

The genial 57-year-old administrator, who last month completed his sixth year as the city's rent czar, has a huge supply of such personal anecdotes.

Friends say his smile, ruddy cheeks and twinkling eyes give him the appearance of a slender Santa minus the beard.

Despite his pleasant manner, Cogswell takes a serious interest in even the smallest office details and listens earnestly to those who come to him with problems.

"Many of these landlord-tenant problems don't have a thing in the world to do with rent control," he says. "But we always investigate them anyway, to make sure we aren't missing something."

Cogswell arrives at his office about 8:30 a. m. each day, spends at least an hour handling early mail. Next comes personal conferences with staff members. Cogswell obtains assistants' views before deciding major problems.

After the conferences, Cogswell plunges into a day of varying activities.

When a local hotel is up for sale, buyers want to know what the chances are for higher rents, or how the District's control act compares with that in their own States.

Persons planning new apartment houses or hotels bring in blueprints to check on items which might affect future rent[illegible]

Lawyers frequently consult him to get his interpretation of the control law.

In the course of an average day, Cogswell may called upon to act as lawyer, judge, real estate appraiser, construction expert, detective, accountant or human relations counselor.

He seldom leaves his office before 5:45 p.m., frequently takes papers home to study. Many evenings and Saturdays he inspects new buildings for which he must ultimately set rents.

Asked why he continues in the tough, $9400-a-year job when he could make more money in private law practice, Cogswell replied:

"I started the office from scratch, with nothing but a chair, table, pencil and pad. It was the first of its kind in the United States. I just feel I'd like to see it through to the end."

A World War I Army veteran, he accepted his present assignment because "I felt I couldn't get back into the Army in combat capacity."

A native of Washington, he is a Georgetown University law school graduate and member of the District bar. Early legal training came in the clerk's office of the United States Supreme Court. Later he served as law clerk to Chief Justices Harlan F. Stone and William Howard Taft and Justice Joseph McKenna.

He has been president of The Barristers (club for lawyers in actual trial practice) and vice president of the District Bar Association.

He and his wife, Helen, live at 3504 Lo[illegible]ll st. nw. Their son, Robert, a World War II Navy veteran, is tak[illegible] a premedical course at the University of Virginia.

1947 Income Census Here Begins Today

The Census Bureau will begin gathering facts today about 1947 incomes of Greater Washington families for the District government and for two Federal agencies.

The survey is being made primarily for the District Commissioners, who are required by the Redevelopment Act of 1945 to determine the number of District families of each income level.

This act, the Census Bureau explained, limits public housing to families whose income falls within the lowest 20 per cent of incomes of all families. The point separating the lowest 20 per cent can be found only by obtaining information concerning all incomes.

With the approval of the Commissioners, the bureau has accepted requests from the Bureau of Labor Statistics and from the Housing and Home Finance Agency to include all Greater Washington in the survey. A cross-section of families scientifically selected to represent all families in the area will be questioned.

The BLS will use the figures in connection with a survey of family expenditures that it is conducting. The housing agency wants the facts to establish a relationship between family income and housing.

The Census Bureau enumerators will ask questions on wages, salaries or other sources of income, and also whether free meals or rent-free quarters were furnished as partial pay. Assurance is given by the bureau that any information furnished is used solely for statistical purposes and cannot be divulged to any other agency or used for taxation, regulation or investigation.

Hampton Institute President Offers His Resignation

Hampton, Va., Feb. 1 (AP).—President Ralph P. Bridgman of Hampton Institute has submitted his resignation to the school board of of trustees, but the board tabled action on the matter at a meeting here yesterday.

In submitting his resignation, Bridgman asked that it be "accepted to take effect not later than August 31." Before coming to Hampton Institute as president in February, 1944, Bridgman was the dean of Brooklyn College.

Yesterday's meeting and the resulting announcements were the outgrowth of faculty and student complaints concerning the institute head last October.

The board reported that its investigation had confirmed its "entire confidence in President Bridgman's integrity . . . and in the soundness of his educational program."

However, the report said that the cumulative effect of charges made against Bridgman "is great and does disclose a wide and deep-seated opposition to him which is very serious."

Thieves Who Lean to Caviar Take Groceries Worth $4640

Thieves who obviously knew their groceries stole $4640 worth of foods and dry goods from a market warehouse, necessitating a 6-man inventory that took all of last week.

Milton L. Browne, 1627 Lamont st. nw., manager of Larimer's Market, told police 485 cases of choice goods were found missing last Monday from the warehouse on N st. between 21st and 22d st. nw. These included red caviar, olive oil, various canned delicacies as well as certain kinds of soap—a selection that convinced Browne the thieves knew just what was scarcest and most expensive.

He found two padlocks and two regular locks on the front door had been broken to gain access, and the snow near the building was well packed down, indicating that a truck had made several trips to carry away the cases. There was about $35,000 worth to choose from, he added.

$300 Worth of Narcotics Stolen From Drug Store

Thieves stole about $300 worth of morphine and cocaine from a Connecticut ave. nw. drug store about midnight Saturday police reported yesterday.

The theft of $50 in cash and about $65 worth of clothes from a second-floor room was reported yesterday by Arthur Coley, 52, of 59 H st. nw. He told police he discovered the loss when he returned to his room early yesterday morning.

Slick Sleuthing

Pawnshop Clews Put Man in Hock

A relentless man-hunter is Detective Sergt. L. A. Hartnett of the general assignment squad.

Douglas C. Johnson, 46, a pseudo traveling salesman with no fixed address, could give him a testimonial. Johnson is now in the District Jail awaiting sentencing for grand larceny.

Hartnett

The story begins last October 18. Larry P. Keighley of Philadelphia, a photographer assigned by the Saturday Evening Post to take pictures to illustrate an article about Georgetown, returned to his room at the Statler Hotel to find it had been looted of photographic equipment worth $1200.

Found Meter Next Day

Hartnett took down the serial numbers of the stolen equipment, which included two cameras and three exposure meters. On October 19, he found one of the missing exposure meters in a pawnbroker's shop at 9th and E sts. nw. The records showed it had been pawned by "C. D. Johnson of 720 nw. 10th st."

Because of the address, the detective reasoned the thief must be a stranger in Washington. Hartnett found a parking lot at 720 10th st. nw. He checked hotels in that area. He found that a "D. C. Johnson" had checked out of the Ebbitt Hotel the night of the theft. A forwarding address in Chicago was found to be a phony.

Hartnett compared the writing on the hotel register with that on the pawn ticket. They matched. He contacted Chicago police and they began a check of pawn shops there.

Chicago police recovered a camera and a lens stolen here. Again Johnson had given ficticious addresses in Chicago. On November 1, Chicago police came across a suit pawned by Johnson. This time he made the mistake of giving his correct address. He was arrested in his hotel room.

Johnson contested removal proceedings. Still relentless, Hartnett went to Chicago to testify. Johnson lost the fight against extradition.

The self-styled traveling salesman was returned here January 9. Last Wednesday, the day before he was to go on trial, he entered a plea of guilty in District Court.

Dial System Connects 100 U. S. Agencies

An interdepartmental dial telephone system connecting 100 Government agencies and serving 92,000 phones will be brought into service by the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. today.

The new system, first installation of its kind, is expected to handle more than half a million calls a month. Employes in the Government offices will now be able to dial other agencies, including the District government, without using the regular outside phone numbers.

A Navy employe, for instance, can call the Army Department remely by dialing 131 on his phone, and then asking for the desired extension in the usual way.

The new setup reduces the interdepartmental manual switchboard commonly called the "Government switchboard" or "80 board" which has been in service for nearly 50 years.

The C. & P. said a survey indicated that an over-all saving of $75,000 annually would be accomplished by the system.

The new dial setup will operate on a 24-hour basis and will interconnect 92 per cent of all Government phones in the Washington metropolitan area.

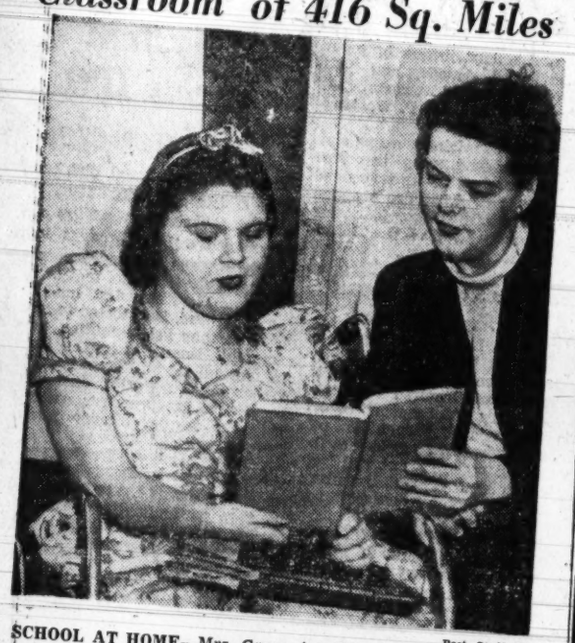
Fairfax County Teacher Rules 'Classroom' of 416 Sq. Miles



SCHOOL AT HOME—Mrs. Grace Arnold, teacher of shut-ins of Fairfax County, instructs chair-bound Peggy Walters, 16, of Oakton

Post Staff Photo

By Richard Lyons
Post Reporter

Mrs. Grace Arnold, Fairfax County school teacher, teaches a class of 11 children in a classroom covering 416 square miles.

She is called "teacher of homebound." Her students are those who can't go to school—the crippled and those with permanent or long illnesses. So school goes to them.

Every school day she drives around the county taking school to children, some of whom have never been inside a classroom.

Until the recent addition of her eleventh student, Mrs. Arnold spent half a day a week with each. Now she has to juggle her schedule.

One of her students is Peggy Walters, 16, of Oakton, poliomyelitis crippled both her legs and one arm when she was 5.

Never Been to School

Peggy has never been to school. But she is carried on the rolls as a junior—and each day she is marked present at Fairfax High School.

Other students include a first grader who lost one leg and the use of the other in an accident, a boy who broke his back and was out half a year, children with heart trouble and spastic conditions.

The work is stimulating, the teacher says, because the children want to learn. One reason is undoubtedly because the work and her visits break the day's monotony.

Although Mrs. Arnold can see them only once a week, the "class" gets a full schedule of work to do through the week. The teacher counts much on the parents to guide the children through their weekly assignments.

Set Up Six Years Ago

Fairfax was the first county to have a full-time teacher for the home-bound when it established the post six years ago. Mrs. Arnold, with both her own children in school, took over the job a year ago.

Funds to support the program come from the State, Community Chest, Infantile Paralysis Fund and the Crippled Children's Bureau.

The program is under the supervision of James E. Bauserman, supervisor of elementary schools in the county. So far, one student has graduated from high school solely because of this help. Several others have returned to school to graduate with their class because of it.

Home Destroyed

Family Flees Farm Blaze; Baby Burned

A two-month-old baby was burned and a family of six made homeless yesterday when fire destroyed a tenant house on the W. R. Winslow farm on Avery rd. near Redland, Md.

The four-room dwelling, valued at $5000, burned to the ground. Gaithersburg, Washington Grove and Rockville Volunteer Fire Departments were unable to save the building because of lack of water.

Robert Grigsby, 38, and his wife, Frances, 32, were at breakfast when they smelled smoke and found the second floor of the house was afire. The father ran up stairs and saved the baby, Timothy, who was taken to Montgomery County General Hospital, Olney, by Corp. Ralph Offutt and Policeman Paul Federline of the Montgomery County Police.

The child was treated for burns on the face, nose and hands.

A 13-year-old boy, Clark, was asleep upstairs and jumped from a window. The Grigsbys have two other children, Amelia, 2, and Robert, 13 months.

The mother told police she had placed a mattress near a wood stove in the room to dry and it might have caught fire.

Home Blaze Routs Four in Alexandria

A two-alarm fire of undetermined origin gutted the second floor and routed four persons from a two-story frame house at 116 S. Henry st., Alexandria, yesterday afternoon.

A container of canned heat exploded in a first-floor room at 1221 D st. ne. last night, causing a two-alarm fire which gutted the first floor and burned out two rooms in a second-floor apartment. Mrs. Helen Wright said the explosion occurred just after she had ignited the container in her first floor bedroom.

By chopping holes in the roof and flooding the eaves and roofs of three adjoining homes with water, the Alexandria Volunteer Fire Department kept the blaze from spreading. Chief Bernard J. Padgett was in charge.

Evicted by clouds of smoke from the four apartments were Mrs. Myrtle Flick, 30; her daughter, Barbara Ann, 11; her mother, Mrs. Emma Shiffiett, 63, and Thomas Chumley, 23. Other residents were away at the time of the fire.

Corpl. William Schwartz of the Alexandria Police Department, who lives at 112 S. Henry st., turned in the first alarm after smelling smoke from the street.

South Henry st. was blocked and trucks traveling over it as part of U. S. Highway 1 were routed though Alexandria via N. Patrick st. and S. Fayette st., Police Lieut. J. W. Baber said.

Mrs. Henrietta Grant

President, First Lady At Congressional Club

By Marie McNair

Almost all the ladies of the Congressional Club had a hand in yesterday's reception in honor of President and Mrs. Truman.

Dozens of them took their turn at the tea table; others served as a "steering committee;" still others were just "bosses." But all saw to it that their husbands turned out, too.

Mrs. Joseph Farrington was general chairman for the occasion. Mrs. Clifford Davis, president of the club, was at the front door to greet the Chief Exxecutive and First Lady and their daughter; to pin a spray of five purple orchids on Mrs. Truman's long draped black crepe gown, and brown orchids on Margaret Truman's beige jacket.

Mrs. Wallace White, jr., first vice president, escorted the honor guests to the ballroom; Mrs. Stirling Cole, chairman of the hospitality committee, had Mrs. John Rankin and Mrs. Karl Stefan to help her to make sure that guests didn't linger downstairs. And upstairs Mrs. Kenneth Wherry, Mrs. Pete Jarman and Mrs. Robert Ramspeck tried to keep order until the honor guests arrived.

Mrs. Kilday in Charge

Flower decked tea tables set up in the two dining rooms were Mrs. Paul Kilday's job, with Mrs. Jay LeFevre as her assistant, and at another small table for the President and First Lady Mrs. Otis Bland had been asked to pour tea.

Representative Frances Bolton, Mrs. Will Whittington, Mrs. Harold Burton were among those at the silver tea and coffee services and others were Mrs. James F. Byrnes in shining black satin, an aqua feather hat on her silver hair; Mrs. J. Howard McGrath, Mrs. Charles Halleck, Mrs. Edward Burke, Mrs. Sheridan Downey.

Mrs. John Taber served her allotted time filling coffee cups and others pouring were Mrs. Robert Rich, Representative Margaret Chase Smith, Representative Edith Nourse Rogers in rustling brown taffeta with a demure bonnet to match; Mrs. Edward E. Gann, Mrs. John J. Sparkman, Mrs. Lindsay Warren and Mrs. Porter Dale.

Fellow Missourians who presided at the table in the small dining room were Mrs. Forrest Donnell and Mrs. James Kem, wife of the Missouri Senators; Mrs. Wat Arnold, Mrs. Max Schwabe, Mrs. Orville Zimmerman, Mrs. Walter R. Ploeserm, Mrs. Frank M. Karsten, Mrs. Clarence Cannon, Mrs. Albert Reeves, Mrs. Dewey Short, Mrs. Clarence Cannon, wifes of Representatives from the same state.

Also serving were Mrs. Clarence Brown, Mrs. Eugene Cox, Mrs. Leverett Saltonstall, Mrs. Allen J. Ellender, Mrs. Leslie Arends, Mrs. Herbert R. O'Conor, and Mrs. Brien McMahon.

Mrs. Davis in Black

And now here's the line-up for the receiving line headed by Mrs. Davis, in a high necked black gown accented with black sequins and pink and white camellias at her shoulder. President Truman and Mrs. Truman were next, then Mrs. Wallace White in brown lace. Other officers and their husbands were: Representative Clifford Davis; Representative and Mrs. Lansdale Sasscer, Representative and Mrs. Leroy Johnson, Representative and Mrs. Albert Thomas, Representative and Mrs. Errett Scrivner, Representative and Mrs. Harry McGregor, Representative and Mrs. Mike Mansfield and Representative and Mrs. Aime Forand.

In a hasty tour of the circular ballroom I looked for Republican big-wigs who just didn't seem to be there. However, I did see Speaker of the House Joe Martin having a chat with the President.

Mrs. Claude Pepper, in black velvet with a white tasseled hat, reported that the Senator is still in Florida. Representative and Mrs. John Davis Lodge went down the line and from the Cabinet group were the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. John W. Snyder, the Attorney General and Mrs. Tom Clark, the Secretary of Labor and Mrs. Lewis Schwellenbach. Secretary of the Army Kenneth Royall was accompanied by Mrs. Royall in a black lace gown, purple orchid corsage and a black hat of tiny clipped feathers.

The President's military aide, Gen. Harry Vaughan and Mrs. Vaughan; the President's assistant, John Steelman, and Mrs. Steelman, in black sequined gown and lace-bordered hat, were others in the throng of more than 1000 guests.

Glimpsed also were former Representative and Mrs. Maurice Thatcher, Mrs. William N. Doak, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Muir and Chief of Staff of the Air Force, Gen. Carl Spaatz with Mrs. Spaatz; Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis and Mrs. Senate George.

Elkins Entertain

Speaker Joe Martin went from the Congressional Club to the all-Republican gathering at former Senator and Mrs. Davis Elkins' home yesterday.

In the library where the bar was set up Senator Harry Cain had the floor, surrounded by a group of wide-eyed youngsters, friends of Katherine Elkins, here from Simmons College for the week end.

In the drawing room Speaker Martin and Mrs. Edward E. Gann sat together on the sofa. Senator Chapman Revercomb and Mrs. Revercomb, who had also been first to the Congressional Club, brought along their pretty daughter, Anne.

Others there were Representative Edward Rohrbough, Mrs. Fred Britten, in stiff black silk and a pale pink rose on her hat; Mrs. Peter Drury, all in black; Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Morris and Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Leighton.

The hostess and her two daughters—and they're all three beauties—stood together in the wide hallway with Mr. Elkins moving about from group to group.

Mrs. Elkins wore black embroidered in circlets of sequins and a magnificent necklace of emeralds and diamonds. Katherine was in black and white, the bodice of white sequins, and a long narrow skirt of black sequins. And Maureen, who'll probably be a debutante next year, was slim and fair in a soft faille taffeta gown of aqua tone, the full skirt caught at intervals with tiny bows.

Young People Present

Mr. and Mrs. Elkins gave a dinner dance at the Shoreham Saturday evening for their daughters and their son, Davis, jr.

Girls from out-of-town who were also at the party yesterday were Miss Barbar Jaffee, Miss Elizabeth Drury, Miss Patricia Grogan, Miss Marion Grogan, Miss Polly Donovan, all classmates of Katherine Elkins at Simmons. Others were Miss Hildreth Steve and Miss Ruth Fuller of New York; Miss Anne Kirkpatrick of Ohio; William Donovan, jr., Edgar de la Cruz, Richard Drury all of Harvard; John Connelly of Boston, and Thomas Zirpolo of New York.

Fashion Luncheon Benefit For Hospital Cancer Clinic

Still another fashion show and luncheon, this one for a cause which should pack the ballroom at the Mayflower Hotel on Monday, February 23, when the Ladies Aid to Garfield Memorial Hospital will sponsor "Springtime in Washington" for the benefit of its cancer prevention clinic.

Mrs. Frederick F. B. Siddons, president, has announced that the show, one of the largest to be seen this season, is to be presented by the Washington Fashion Group of which Miss Gertrude Prisley is regional director.

The cancer prevention clinic was the first to be established here in Washington, largely through the efforts of Mrs. John Clifford Folger, its chairman and first vice president of the Ladies Aid. Supported by the American Cancer Society, it has already proved its worth to the community. The long wating list for appointments points clerly to the crying need for more space and additional equipment. To atttain this goal, and to make possible the expansion of the clinic in order to provide more immediate attention to all those clamoring for examinations, members of the Ladies Aid are bending every effort.

Mrs. Andrew Parker is chairman of the benefit. Her committee chairmen are Mrs. George E. Hamilton, jr., in charge of invitations; Mrs. Wilbur J. Carr, patronesses; Mrs. Eberhart Haynes, publicity; Mrs. John Price Wetherill 3d, reservations; Mrs. Walter W. Boyd, tickets; Mrs. C. F. Burton, Mrs. Charles Elmore Cropley, Mrs. Folger, Mrs. C. Ashmead Fuller, Mrs. William A. Morgan and Mrs. William North Sturtevant, advisory committee members.

The forthcoming show is the first to be staged by the Washington Fashion Group and members are going all out to make the event outstanding in fashion history.

Madly Jealous in Courtship, Man Is Cruel In Marriage, Telling Wife He Is Punishing Her for Humiliating Him When He First Cared

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Almost from the start of our marriage five years ago, my foreign-born husband, Karl, has seemed determined to destroy it. He claims he is still punishing me for having humiliated him when we first were dating.

Two years after we met, we married, shortly after he had volunteered for Army service, and for a time we were completely happy, although many of my friends had opposed the match, knowing Karl to be moody and hot tempered and me to be serious and sensitive.

He is of a fine family, rather pampered by his mother and from a country where women aren't considered men's equals, and I have discovered how proudly unrelenting he is. He says I only married him because he "forced" me; because I couldn't get rid of him, and also because I couldn't get anyone else!—which definitely isn't true.

When we met, he was a postgraduate university student, earning a few dollars a week in a part-time job. I was very popular, in no hurry to marry and moreover marriage to him seemed highly improbable, but he tried immediately to monopolize me completely and the "humiliations" were scenes he created over my friendships with other men.

Reviles Wife, Sulks for Days

HE ATTRACTED me in every way (my only misgivings were about his disposition) and when we married I was wholeheartedly in love with him and still could be—but this he claims to disbelieve, although I've proved it in every way I know.

Always curt and usually indifferent now, he will call me "stupid" or curse me viciously, even in front of our child. He sulks for days, not speaking a word; and if I ask why, a quarrel starts. In every quarrel he refers to the past and cuts me to the quick with insulting references to my family and my father's work—of which there is no reason not to be proud.

Of course I sometimes get angry too; then he listens glumly while I rant, and if I finally wind up almost in nervous hysterics it seems to calm him and he may apologize, but the following day he resumes the fight.

We have so much reason to be happy. Why aren't we? He is ambitious and attractive, his position is secure (although it sometimes bores him); he is making good and has proved himself to be dependable and faithful in his way, although he couldn't possibly be called affectionate or considerate. Have you any suggestions that might help us to understand each other better? I doubt that he would resort to psychiatry.

E. F.

Man's Behavior Form of Illness

DEAR E. F.: Karl is a desperately neurotic character, whose morbid theory that he is punishing you for having humiliated him in the early rounds of courtship is symptomatic of very complicated emotional sickness which was already operative and working havoc in his personality at the time you met him.

The situation is serious, and the need for remedial action critical, inasmuch as his jealous, morose, vindictive attitude towards the woman he loves—a greatly devoted and blameless spouse—hints that his illness may be of paranoic type, which systematically gets worse to the extent of being incurable (after which the patient is dangerously hostile to intimates), unless the ailment is "caught" by early diagnosis and intensively treated. In which case the chances of recovery are good.

A few years ago, on the heels of a similar case discussed in this column, a woman wrote to tell the heart-rending story of her marriage to a man she dearly loved who suffered increasingly—and caused her to suffer—from such symptoms, the significance of which, neither understood.

Specialist Help Might Turn Trick

FOR YEARS they lived in terrible strain of conflict and reconciliation; and then finally, with the wife's health breaking, they sought advices of a diagnostic clinic—but too late to help the man. He was found to be in an advanced incurable stage of paranoiac illness; and says the wife, the most tragic aspect of the diagnosticians' report was the statement, "if he had come to us some years ago, we might have saved him."

In giving us the story, she said her purpose was to forewarn others of the folly, the irreparable damage to health and happiness, of "false pride" or ignorant failure to get specialist help early, when vehement manifestations of unfounded jealousy or fancied humiliation can't be dissolved by reasonable proof that the "accused" is wholly innocent of wrong-doing or hurtful intent.

It were futile to try to understand Karl, and equally futile to solicit "sweet reason" from him, unless and until he faces the fact that he is emotionally sick and mentally confused, and makes an honest effort to understand himself and get straightened out—in which task he might succeed, if he brings psychoanalytic help to the rescue

Unhappy Child Finds Relief In Destruction

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

Some destruction of toys is as natural as their purchase. Even one month after Christmas, many of them will be broken and discarded. The fragile toys will disintegrate in use. The ones with removable parts will be minus those and the toys of many parts will be scattered from end to end of the house.

There are reasons, above and beyond the fragility of toys, which inspires their destruction. The toy may be of such type as to arouse no interest in the child. A sectional map of the United States or Canada may be suitable for the child of 8 years or over. It is just a mass of meaningless parts to the child of 5 or under. There remains only one thing he can do with it and that is fire the sections around the room at any available target. This is an expression of his complete indifference, whcih is not so much his fault as the fault of the giver who chose a toy outside his realm of understanding.

Pure destruction, for its own sake and regardless of the toy involved, would seem to advertise some of the child's own anxieties and tensions. There is need for their solution.

The happy child is not needlessly destructive. He does not feel an urge to be mean toward individuals or to destroy the property they cherish. But, if there is such spirit, the child will indicate it in various ways, of which destruction is a prominent one.

Mrs. S. who bewails the loss of her living room curtains which her 4-year-old slashed with scissors, forgets that on the previous day she took away the girl's best doll, broke its head by careless handling and then scolded the child. The child's pent-up emotions find their outlet in destroying something that is precious to the mother.

Children are taught early in life that they cannot express strong emotions toward their parents. They are punished for yelling bad names or saying, "I hate you." But they can express in action toward possessions of the parent, some of the hurt, mean, antagonistic emotions which are fostered by the parents' treatment of them.

Yes, there may be more behind senseless destruction of valuables than merely a child's careless behavior. It may advertise some chronic sore spot in the relationship of parent and child.

When Icing a Cake

Pile .ll the icing in the center of the cake and then smooth it out over the sides evenly. A smooth appearance is added if the knife is dipped in hot water and then used to smooth the cake. An evenly distributed appearance always adds up to the appearance of the cake, as does spreading the icing over the sides of the layers as well as on top.

The Uncluttered 'Look' Is Best

A sweet-smelling, uncluttered refrigerator is a "must" in any kitchen.

If you're addicted to storing food in paper sacks, you'd better stop it right away because paper is an insulation.

Neither should an accumulation of bottles, jars and cans take up space. And don't stack or pack things in the refrigerator.

Anyone can follow a few simple rules to get the best out of a refrigerator.

Six steps were outlined the other day on a "Betty Crocker Magazine of the Air" which are as follows:

1. Choose the same day each week for cleaning out the refrigerator .
2. Begin by removing all the food.
3. Defrost the refrigerator.
4. Add a bit of baking soda to warm water. Use a soft cloth to wash the shelves and sides.
5. Dry all the surfaces carefully.
6. Refill the trays with fresh cold water. To prevent the trays from sticking, wrap wax paper around the bottom and sides.

A charcoal brick placed on one of the shelves in the upper portion of the refrigerator will absorb odors for many months. If it becomes moist and a bit sticky, simply set it in the oven and bake until it is dry again.

Leftovers should be stored in covered dishes on the top shelf nearest the unit. Eggs should go on one of the lower shelves, either in their own container, or a covered bowl.

Fresh leafy vegetables, clean and washed, are stored either in the hydrator or in a generous sized plastic bag with a long zipper closing. Washed and drained parsley or watercress go in a quart fruit jar, covered with a piece of waxed paper held securely by a rubber band.

By letting the free passage of cold, clean air conserve the stored food, the homemaker is taking an important step in saving food that might otherwise spoil, even in a refrigerator.

F. H. James Weds Emily T. Dillon

Purcellville, Va., Feb. 1.—The marriage of two Loudoun County residents, Emily T. Dillon, formerly of Frederick, Md., and Fleet H. James, of Purcellville, took place Saturday in Warrenton, Va. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. G. C. Heyl, Baptist minister.

Those in attendance at the ceremony and luncheon which followed were members of the immediate families, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Robey, Purcellville; Mrs. John A. Tyree, Virginia Beach; Clifton Miller, Vineland, N. J.; Duncan Miller, Princeton, N. J., and Mr. and Mrs. Maynard H. Waterfield, of Purcellville.

Mr. and Mrs. James will visit in the South before returning to Loudoun County later this month.

To Visit New Orleans

Mrs. Elonzo Tyner will leave today by motor for New Orleans to visit friends and to attend the Mardi Gras. She will be back in her apartment at the Shoreham in about two weeks.

House Plants Need Special Care

A good potted cyclamen will bloom for several months if kept at a temperature of 65 to 68 degrees where it can get morning light. Never let the soil dry out completely while it is blooming. When it starts to lose leaves, allow soil to dry, then store in a cool dark damp celler to carry it over a second season.

A begonia needs full sun during winter months. Everblooming begonias will bloom through the whole year, even in warm rooms and in low humidity.

Data for the Housekeeper

Torn matting may be darned successfully with raffia.

Dry bran is excellent for cleaning velvet flowers. Simply rub on the soiled parts, and brush off, repeating if necessary.

A little ammonia added to the water in which white clothes are to be soaked will loosen the dirt and make the washing easier.

One wise mother makes her baby's rompers out of crinkled crepe. They wash out readily, require no ironing, and the material comes in attractive colors and patterns.

Use the worn cuffs from hubby's shirts and cover them with a pattern of gay cretonne, and your potholder is all ready for use.

If you are discarding the table oilcloth, save the best parts to line kitchen drawers. It is easily kept clean and will last a long time.

When washing glassware and delicate china, place a clean hand towel in the bottom of the dishpan to act as a pad. It is a protection against chipping and breakage.

Ask Anne Your Questions on Homemaking

My husband is very fond of smelts and I don't object to cooking them, but they seem to get too hard and dry if I get them brown enough. Can you tell me exactly how they should be handled and fried? If batter is used, please give ingredients for same and how to make it stick to fish, as I am not accustomed to using batter. H. M. C.

Clean the smelts for cooking. Remove all moisture by patting all surfaces with a paper towel. Now sprinkle with salt and pepper, roll in flour, dip in beaten egg and lastly, roll in fine, dry crumbs. These can be fried in deep fat at 360° for 3 or 4 minutes, or you can pan-fry them. To pan-fry them, heat four tablespoons of vegetable fat in a frying pan. Be sure the fat is entirely melted and hot before placing in the fish. As soon as brown on one side, turn. If you think the fish are not cooked through when browned, reduce heat and cover, cooking 10 minutes or until cooked through. For a crisp surface, remove cover for last minute or so of cooking period. To be sure any coating will stick, the fish must be dry when the coating is put on. Also, in frying in deep fat it is important the fat is hot enough, otherwise the coating will drop off before it hardens. If you do much cooking with deep fat, it is wise to buy a deep fat thermometer so you can be sure of temperature.

How much should be allowed for shrinkage when making wall drapes of unbleached muslin? S. K. E.

It is difficult to say how much should be allowed for shrinkage on any material because the amount will vary so much with materials. The safest method is to shrink the material before making it up. Do this by washing or take it to a dry cleaning establishment and ask them to steam press it. This process will shrink it as it is pressed.

Could you tell me how to remove a small spot (eggnog) from a sapphire blue velvet dress? R.T.M.

Sponge the stain with carbon tetrachloride, working from the back as much as possible and do not rub the pile any more than necessary. Brush lightly and let it dry. Now, sponge with cold water to remove any stains from egg or sugar in the ice cream. Here, again, sponge the back of the material first to remove most of the stain. When removing stain from right side, sponge very lightly. When stain is removed, and before spot dries, hold the spot over the spout of a steaming tea kettle to raise the pile.

I have a white silk muffler which turned a little bit yellow during the summer. I tried to bleach the scarf with household bleach but, instead of whitening it, the yellow became more intense. Is there anything that can be done to restore the whiteness of the silk? H. F.

Bleaches that contain chlorine are quite injurious to silk fibers. I'm doubtful about your being able to restore the whiteness of the scarf at this point. However, if you like, you might try one of the color removing preparations made by dye companies and recommended for use on silk. These are sold in most drugstores.

My basement recreation room is floored with asphalt tile. It appears never to have been cared for in any special way such as waxing or varnishing. Recently, my maid used carbon tetrachloride fluid to remove some grease spots from the tile and this seems to have left it with discolored blotches and to have roughened the finish. Could you tell me the proper way to clean and polish this floor? Also is there any remedy for disfiguration left by the cleaning fluid? If necessary to replace those tile blocks, would it be possible for me to do the work? Or can the blocks be removed separately? M. W. U.

Grease, as well as cleaning fluids, is injurious to asphalt tile. In this case, they probably both contributed to destroying the surface. The damaged blocks can be dug out and replaced with new ones. Dealers who handle asphalt tile can sell you separate blocks and the adhesive with which to fasten them. You should be able to do the work yourself.

Here are suggestions for proper care of the tile: Sweep with hair broom or use vacuum cleaner. Dust with untreated mop. Dampen mop with clear, cold water if necessary. When washing floor, use mop wrung out of mild lukewarm suds or use a special cleanser recommended by the manufacturer. Rinse with mop wrung out of clear water. Dry with clean dry mop. Apply self-polishing (water emulsion) wax or special finish recommended by the manufacturer.

Don't use an oiled mop or any cleaner containing oil on the floor. Avoid strong soaps or soap powders, harsh scouring powders, detergents, turpentine or similar solvents, paste or liquid wax. Don't apply varnish, lacquer, or shellac as these are injurious to asphalt tile and will eventually cause unsightly traffic lanes.

If you replace the damaged tiles, don't use excessive amounts of water or wax on them until the adhesive has thoroughly set. Wait about two weeks.

I have put clear lacquer on my sterling silver dishes and candlesticks to keep them from tarnishing so quickly. Now the lacquer is wearing off in spots, which makes the silver look bad. Could you tell me what I could use to remove all the lacquer? R. W.

Use denatured alcohol to remove the old lacquer, then apply the fresh lacquer coat.

Alps Tragedy

18 Victims Found After Air Crashes

Istres, France, Feb. 1 (AP).—The bodies of 16 Americans, including six women and children, victims of two plane crashes on Alpine slopes, were brought here tonight.

Two more bodies will be brought here from Digne.

Three bodies, including those of Mrs. Shirley G. Martin, and her 1-year-old son, Benjamin Martin, jr., of Princeton, N. J., have not been recovered.

The first plane, A United States Air Force C-47, crashed Tuesday with 12 Americans. They included three wives and five children going to join American soldiers in Trieste. The second plane, A B-17 Flying Fortress with 10 aboard, went down Friday just after its crew had sighted the transport's wreckage.

The condition of Staff Sergt. Angelo Lasalle of Des Moines, Iowa, sole surviver of the two crashes, was reported fair at a Digne hospital.

Williamsburg, Va., Session to Revive Custom Begun in '34

Special Dispatch to The Post

Richmond, Feb. 1. — The Virginia General Assembly will hold its sessions in Colonial Williamsburg Saturday for the first time since World War II.

The sessions will mark a return to a custom started in 1934, following the Williamsburg reconstruction. At that session, John D. Rockefeller, jr., who contributed the money for the reconstruction, was made an honorary citizen of Virginia.

Williamsburg was the capital of Virginia until December 24, 1779, when the General Assembly moved to Richmond.

With the January organizing and preliminary political skirmishes behind, the Assembly members today were returning here to settle down tomorrow to a routine.

Since the Assembly convened January 14, only relatively minor bills have come up. Thus far, 256 bills have been introduced, 141 of them in the House and 115 in the Senate.

Committee hearings this week are scheduled for:

Monday—On bills amending the garnishments laws.

Tuesday—On a bill amending the unemployment compensation law;

Wednesday—On a bill making women liable for jury service, a bill affecting fees and duties of clerks of courts, and proposed appropriations for the State Welfare Department.

U. S. Income Held Underestimated Up to 33 Billions

Baltimore, Feb. 1 (AP).—Senator O'Conor (D., Md.) declared today he believes the Nation's income has been underestimated in the budget by up to 33 billion dollars.

"Based on present indications the national income will be 230 or 240 billion dollars instead of the 207 billions predicted," the Senator said in a broadcast.

"Many competent observers declared the Federal budget in the 1930's was fantastic, and yet it was but a fraction of this buget If it keeps on, budgets 10 and 15 years from now will be all-consuming.

"Meanwhile, the purchasing power of the dollar will at the same time decline because such a large percentage of it will be eaten up by Government expenditures, which do not give a return to the taxpayers in good and supplies."

Fire Destroys Transmitter of WANN, Annapolis

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 1 (AP).—Radio Station WANN's transmitter house was destroyed by fire early today, but Station Manager Tom Carr said the station would be back on the air "within 48 hours."

Carr said the station had obtained use of an emergency mobile transmitter unit from the naval communications station here, part of the Severn River Naval Command, and hoped to get the equipment set up by tomorrow.

A passing motorist noticed the blaze in the 1000-watt transmitter house, a small cinder-block structure about 3 miles from Annapolis, and turned in the alarm. Firemen reported the house and equipment a total loss.

Carr estimated the loss at $15,000 to $20,000. It was covered by insurance, he said. The station's studios are located in Annapolis and operate during daylight hours only.

Frederick's B. & O. Station, Built in '54, Reaches the End

Frederick, Md., Feb. 1 (Spl.).—The final chapter in the life of Frederick's historic Baltimore & Ohio Railroad passenger station will be written this week when workmen begin removing tracks alongside the 94-year-old red brick structure.

The building will be closed tomorrow and passengers will use the railroad freight station, which has been altered to provide a waiting room.

The railroad company hasn't yet decided what use will be made of the building. Decision to abandon it was reached last month, when Frederick municipal officials expressed a desire to widen East All Saints Street and asked the B. & O. to cooperate by removing the rails on the south side of the thoroughfare.

Records show that the passenger station was built in 1854. The outstanding event of its history was a visit by President Lincoln to General McClellan's Union Army in 1862. Histories of Frederick disclose that the President stood on "the platform of the rear carriage to show himself and speak to his friends," who crowded around the station and presidential train.

In the three-quarters of a century since that occasion, the B. and O. station has seen the departure of troops to participate in the Spanish-American War, the Mexican border uprising, and World Wars I and II.

War Can Be Avoided, Rickenbacker Says

Bethlehem, Pa., Feb. 1 (AP).—Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker declared today that war can be avoided but only if the United States can convince Russia that "all our air power chips are blue."

1050 Firemen, Policemen Aid Oil Delivery

New York, Feb. 1 (U.P.).—Some 1050 policemen, firemen and city employes climbed aboard fuel oil trucks today to assure delivery of fuel to homes and other priority users under an emergency distribution plan drafted by Mayor William O'Dwyer.

Police Commissioner Arthur W. Wallander said a few companies refused to let police ride their trucks and there was no way to force them.

Wallander said he planned to ask the 850 fuel distributors in the city for voluntary inventories of oil on hand.

The strain on oil supplies was expected to lessen tomorrow, when temperatures in the middle 30's are predicted.

[The United Press said over 1000 veterans went on a rent strike protesting the fuel oil situation. Tenants of a city temporary veterans housing project are being allowed a daily supply of oil each day and have to stand in a line, sometimes 400T deep to get it.]

Baltimore, Feb. 1 (AP).—Claude M. Gray, 55, president of the Baltimore Transit Co., was found shot to death in his home today.

Police said two rifle wounds were in the breast and head and the head was in the oven of the kitchen range, where one burner was on and unlighted. A rifle lay on the table.

Business associates said Gray had been in "low spirits."

The transit system recently converted several trolley lines to bus routes. Complaints resulted in many Public Service Commission hearings.

Blacksburg, Va., Feb. 1 (AP).—Farmers should take precautions against a possible tight supply situation in months ahead by trying now to obtain repair parts necessary for continued operation of farm machinery, Dr. Harry M. Love, Virginia Tech agricultural economist, said today.

Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

This Is Why Columnists Wind Up Cutting Paper Dolls

The parade of strange place names continues unabated, and appears to have no end.

Poet Jay Aitch recalls some pips from the Pennsylvania valley in which he was born: Catasauqua, Hokendauqua, Catawissa, Aquashicola, Aliquippa, Shickshinny, Pohopoco and Mauch Chunk.

Sometimes I think people just make these up to see if we can copy them correctly. Then we get the other kind—like Paradise (Pa.) from H. W. Webster of 518 13th st. se. and Santa Claus (Ind.) from Ph. M. Foster M. Simmons of the Marine Barracks at Quantico, Va.

Valda Stotler of Berkeley Springs, W. Va., submits Omps, from her native State, and Senator Langer recently had a couple of visitors from Ball Game, Minn.

Patricia E. O'Hara of 5110 38th st. nw. notes that Kentucky takes its horses seriously: Horse Cave, Horse Branch, Horse Lick and Horseshoe Bottom.

And that's the way it goes. Everybody has a strange name to contribute to our collection, and the list seems to have no end.

David W. Harker of 1215 17th st. nw. wonders why we haven't mentioned Oshkosh, (gosh!) Wis., or Ipswich, Mass.

Connie McElhinney of Four Winds, Alexandria, Va., says that Oklahoma has a Broken Bow and a Broken Arrow. Mrs. J. C. T. of the Westchester calls attention to the Arizona town, Salome, Where She Danced.

Thelma D. Russell of Flint Hill, Va., keeps us rolling with Goldvein, (no relation) Va., and says that Flint Hill was so named because an early family named Flint lived on a hill there.

Josiah C. Folsom of 1616 N. Garfield st., Arlington, Va., trots out Hell For Certain, Thousand Sticks, and Hogpen—all in Kentucky.

Samuel H. Thompson of 1336 Fairmont st. nw. calls attention to Tennessee's many feminine names: Blanche, Charlotte, Daisy, Diana, Eva, Helena, Isabella, Lucy, Lola, Martha, Shirley, Sylvia, Viola—and even Pocahontas.

Mrs. C. V. Evans of 1416 N. Abingdon st., Arlington, Va., tells me an interesting story about her son, Clifford, who flew around the world in a Flipper Cruiser.

An admirer sent the flyer a request for an autograph—and the letter to Clifford Evans was postmarked Clifford, Mass., and Evans, Col.

"We were giving a Michigander a ride from Kansas City to Detroit," writes Bernice M. Willey of Lanham, Md., "when he casually announced that eggs could be boiled in Cold Water.

"We drove for several miles, trying to figure that one out—and the solution didn't dawn on us until we reached a sign which proclaimed that we were entering Cold Water, Mich."

Maybe you think I'm kidding about there being no end to this list.

Mrs. Joe W. Killen gives us Fiz, Trout, 'Tree Top, Husk and Sly from her native Ashe County, N. C.

And Dick Wharrell of 2428 S. 26th st., Arlington, Va., wonders whether we have heard of the West Virginia town Okonoko — which is Okonoko spelled backwards. (What ever sanity I had when this thing started is ebbing fast.)

B. J. Tesh of 752 Silver Spring ave., Silver Spring, Md., returns to good old West Virginia for Cyclone, Tornado, Whirlwind and Hurricane.

By the way, there's a Solo in Missouri, a Duet in Virginia and a Trio in South Carolina. (The quartet is still in Rigoletto.)

Charlie Latham of Amissville, Va., wants to make sure we do not overlook these names from the Old Dominion: Tramo, Skinquarter, Lovesmill, Signpine, Smoky Ordinary and Long Island.

Wilson Matthews of 3316 S. 6th st., Arlington, Va., contributes the Ohio towns Goes Station, Needmore, Pitchin, Old Town and Enon. (Would you like to take a trip to Morrow, Wilson?)

Want some more? Elisabeth T. Bennett of 2811 Valley dr., Alexandria, Va., says the State of Washington contains such jawbreakers as Satsop, La Push, Puy Allup, Humptulip and Enumilaw. (This drives the printers crazy, too.)

Getting back to the great State of West Virginia, for a moment, Mrs. W. O. Scruggs of 2833 Naylor rd. se. says you can find a Cucumber down there. And as you travel west from Bluefield, the train crosses the Bluestone River 14 times in 10 miles.

Karen Kruse of 2405 Ridge Road dr., Alexandria, Va., adds a couple of Great Smoky Mountains to our list: Twin peaks called Curry He Mountain and Curry She Mountain.

And Maude C. Cahill of 3149 17th st. nw., reports that the country boasts enough automotive names to end the new-car shortage over night. She finds:

Nineteen Auburns, a Buick, a Cadillac, a Chevrolet, a Chrysler, a Cord, 4 De Sotos, 5 Dodges, 4 Fords, 1 Kaiser and 2 Frazers, 17 Hudsons, 6 La Salles, 23 Lincolns, 3 Nashes, an Olds, a Packard, 19 Plymouths, 4 Pontiacs and 2 Tuckers. No Jeeps.

The list isn't ended; we're just running out of space. Thomas W. Marshall of 1707 Holly st. nw. reminds us about Thursday, W. Va.; Friday, Tex.; May Day, Kans., and Sabbath Day Point, N. Y.

District Liner Marshall adds Prosperity, N. C.; Industry, Pa.; Success, Mo., and Thrift, Ga.—and then reveals that his birthplace was a town in Indiana called Economy.

What do you say we give the place names a rest for a while, before I start cutting paper dolls out of all the office road maps?

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK.—Benjamin Cohen of Chile, head of the United Nations' Department of Information, yesterday discussed his international status. "My employer is in the business of peace," he said, and referred to the oath taken by all U. N. employees—that in the conduct of their affairs their first duty is to the U. N. and not to the country of which they are citizens. "Can you be objective in your job?" Cohen was asked . . . "With 57 bosses," he replied, "I cannot afford to be found other than painfully objective."

DRAMA DEPT.: Despite Kay Francis' illness, the touring company of "State of the Union" didn't miss a single performance. As soon as Miss Francis was hospitalized in Columbus, Ohio, Co-author Russel Crouse telephoned Erin O'Brien-Moore, who had played the role and, because no other actress could step into the part immediately, could demand an unusually high salary. "How much do you want?" Crouse asked her . . . "Just Equity minimum, plus expenses," she said. She was given a high salary, flew to Columbus and made the performance that night.

SPORTS DEPT.: Night's sports sections have reported that Fritz Kirsch, the Washington promoter, is preparing to bring Max Schmeling from Germany, to fight a heavyweight contender here . . . Curzio Malaparte, the Italian war correspondent and author of "Kaputt," met Schmeling during the war, at a dinner given by Nazi Governor General Frank of Poland. Schmeling had gone to Warsaw to organize and direct a series of bouts between representatives of the Wehrmacht and the SS. "War," says Schmeling at this dinner, "is the most noble sport."

FINANCIAL DEPT.:—Albert D. Lasker read a story in which he was described as one of America's wealthiest men. "That's not true," he insisted. "In fact, I can name 10 men who live on my street who have more money than I do" . . . Lasker then was asked to name 10 men on Beekman Place who possess more wealth than he does. "Well, at No. 1 Beekman Place lives John D. Rockfeller, Jr.," he began. "That's six . . ."

'Ike' Is Seen Waiting for 1952

By Drew Pearson

General Eisenhower had lunch with a group of brother officers about three weeks before he pulled his hat out of the Presidential ring, at which time he told them that he was fed up and disgusted with politics, especially the Pennsylvania Republicans, who "kissed and told" at the famous Curtis Club dinner. That, he said, was why he was soon getting out of the political race.

Eisenhower

This, however was not quite all of the story. The real fact is that one man has most to do with Ike's withdrawal. He is the man who put Eisenhower in the greatest military operation in American history—George C. Marshall.

And behind Marshall to a considerable extent was another man—Harry S. Truman.

Today, President Truman is smilingly broadly and saying privately that he knew all along that Ike wasn't going to run. But that wasn't the way he felt about it just before Christmas. In fact, when Bob Hannegan came back from a political tour last October and reported "Well, boss, you're in fine shape everywhere except for Eisenhower" Truman gritted his teeth and fumed:

"I don't want to talk about him."

Even before this, Truman had been so sore at George Allen for trying to boom Eisenhower, that he fired his once beloved court jester right out of the White House.

And last November, in a not-even-slightly-camouflaged attempt to put the squeeze on Eisenhower, the President suddenly announced that he had appointed General Bradley Chief of Staff. This left Ike in the uncomfortable position of remaining in a job where he was obviously not wanted, with his successor ready and waiting to take over.

Finally White House strategists even cooked up the idea of having Secretary of State Marshall run for Vice President on the Truman ticket—if Ike persisted in running for President.

Marshall Steps In

Shortly thereafter, General Marshall came back from the London Foreign Ministers Conferences. Immediately he went to work on Eisenhower. He told him that his candidacy was hurting the Army, that in the end Ike himself would get hurt too. Marshall urged that he get out of the race, said he didn't want to oppose him, but that he would have to if he used his military career as a stepping stone to politics.

At that time it was quite evident that Ike was a candidate.

Meanwhile, various arguments were brought to bear on Eisenhower, not only by Marshall but by other Army officers. It was emphasized that he was hurting the Army. In a political campaign a lot of dirty linens would be washed—the humoring of Field Marshal Montgomery, the Battle of the Bulge, the failure of Patton to get gasoline.

Also there was the loyalty of a soldier. When Eisenhower came back from Germany in 1945, it was Harry Truman who called Senator Elbert Thomas of Utah, then chairman of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, and asked that a bill be passed making Eisenhower a permanent five-star general. Thomas had refused, pointing out that it would offend McArthur, Nimitz and Marshall. But the President even sent Secretary of the Treasury Vinson to Senator Thomas as a special lobbyist for Eisenhower's permanent promotion.

Then there was the fact that Harry Truman made him Chief of Staff—the highest position in the United States Army.

Naturally there were twinges of a soldier's conscience.

Memories of Truman's loyalty came simultaneously with the Pennsylvania Republican dinner at the Curtis Club where GOP politicians got outraged at Ike's suggestion that business should take the leadership in heading off inflation by giving up profits for a year if necessary.

This soured Ike considerably, and he told brother officers that if dinner-table conversations were to be used against him, he wanted none of politics.

In fact, Ike felt so bitter about politics that he remarked that both parties were rotten; we should clean out the courthouse on both sides of the political street.

Meanwhile other political doubts had plagued Ike's mind. One was that he might be nominated by people he didn't know who had made a lot of promises in return for the campaign cash. This would make him obligated. Another worry was that he would be nominated in a convention dogfight at which he would have no control over the party platform. This would put him in the position of carrying out a platform which he had not drafted.

Finally, friends pointed out that the next four years were going to be among the toughest in American peacetime history. And if Ike was bypassed now, the people who wanted him in 1948 would want him even more in 1952. And by 1952 he would have four years as a college president in which to take off the military curse.

All of these factors counted. But the man with the greatest influence was George Marshall—who had made Ike top war commander, and who might run against him for Vice President on the Democratic ticket.

After Eisenhower made his final decision and it was communicated to President Truman—which was about three weeks ago—he decided to remain silent for a while, and among other things help spike the McArthur boom.

Time for you

Whatever task I undertake . . . Or problem I pursue . . . I always find that I have time . . . In which to think of you . . . Indeed it does not matter, dear . . . How busy I may be . . . There is no other dream in life . . . That means so much to me . . . You are the music of my heart . . . In every song I sing . . . From summer into autumn and . . . From winter into spring . . . You are the courage and the faith . . . That keep despair away . . . And you are all the beauty and . . . The sunshine of the day . . . And so it does not matter, dear . . . How many things I do . . . As long as I have time enough . . . To be in love with you.

THE HECHT COMPANY SALUTES THE CITIZENS OF WASHINGTON WHOSE HOMES ARE IN

VIRGINIA . . . the old dominion

A State, like an individual, is of no greater value to the world than the service she can render to mankind. Spiritual, not material, wealth equips the State and the individual for that service. I like to think of Virginia as a birthplace of noble ideals and splendid men and women, more than in terms of her standing in agriculture, manufacturing, shipping and commerce. Virginia is renowned for her outstanding contributions in the establishment and maintenance of the American system of democracy. Many of her citizens were leaders in the formation of the United States government: Patrick Henry, whose "Give Me Liberty or Give Me Death" rang throughout the world . . . George Mason, who wrote the Bill of Rights . . . Thomas Jefferson, who counted the authorship of the Declaration of Independence among his many achievements . . . James Madison, who drafted the Constitution of the United States . . . John Marshall, one of the great Chief Justices of the Supreme Court . . . and George Washington, "First in War, First in Peace and First in the Hearts of His Countrymen" . . . were Virginians all. They mean much more to humanity than her tobacco, her apples, her peanuts, her dairy products . . . even more than her fair cities, alive with industry, and her great schools and universities. We feel that The Hecht Company is performing a great community service in acquainting Washingtonians with the achievements of Americans from all the 48 States, and we are proud to add the accomplishments of Virginia's distinguished citizens to the list.

J. W. Rixey Smith

President, State Society of Virginia

VIRGINIA . . . Washington's neighbor . . . native State of many Washingtonians . . . and residence of many people who work in the District . . . but live across the river in "Old Virginny." The government's largest building, the five-sided "Pentagon Building" (officially, the Building of National Defense) stands on Virginia soil . . . and the National Airport, air entrance to the Capital, lies across the Potomac, just this side of Alexandria.

VIRGINIA . . . Site of national landmarks and monuments on the itinerary of every visitor to Washington. George Washington's estate at beautiful Mount Vernon is set aside as a shrine to his memory . . . and Arlington National Cemetery, with its monument consecrated to America's Unknown Soldier, is the goal of many a tourist's pilgrimage. Farther South, in the heart of the State . . . stand the Jamestown Settlement, founded in 1607, the first permanent English settlement in America . . . the Yorktown Battlefield, scene of the British surrender by Cornwallis, which ended the Revolution . . . and the old City of Williamsburg, which has been restored to its original beauty in probably the largest and most authentic restoration project in history. It is said that Virginia became known as the "Old Dominion" in the 1660's, when Charles II of England ranked the Colony among his dominions.

VIRGINIA . . . "Mother of Statesmen" . . . was the birthplace of eight Presidents. Along with Wakefield, Washington's birthplace, she treasures Monticello, Thomas Jefferson's home on the campus of the University of Virginia . . . the Presbyterian manse in Staunton, where Woodrow Wilson was born . . . and the early homes of James Madison, James Monroe, William Henry Harrison, John Tyler and Zachary Taylor. Other eminent Americans of today and yesterday born in Virginia include Patrick Henry and George Mason, author of the Bill of Rights . . . General Robert E. Lee . . . Chief Justice John Marshall . . . Admiral Richard E. Byrd . . . The great Army surgeon, Walter Reed, for whom Walter Reed Hospital is named . . . Senator Carter Glass . . . Booker T. Washington, founder of Tuskegee Institute . . . and authors Edgar Allan Poe, James Branch Cabell and Ellen Glasgow.

VIRGINIA . . . Rolls more cigarettes than any other State . . . in Richmond, the country's leading cigarette maker . . . which produces about one-third of all the cigarettes smoked in America or sent overseas. Newport News is a big shipbuilder. Iron and cotton products, furniture and chemicals are other Virginia manufactures. Her Port of Hampton Roads (formed by the harbors of Norfolk, Portsmouth and Newport News) is one of the country's busiest ports.

VIRGINIA . . . "Where the cotton and the corn and taters grow" . . . is third in tobacco and apple production and fifth in peanuts in America. Delectable Virginia Smithfield hams carry the State's fame to dinner tables all over the world. The Shenandoah Valley is one of the richest U. S. farming areas . . . and the State ranks sixth in commercial fishing. Her principal minerals are bituminous coal, limestone, titanium and soapstone.

VIRGINIA . . . Whose colleges are rich in historical and cultural traditions. The College of William and Mary, founded in 1693, is the second oldest in the country. In 1819, Thomas Jefferson designed and founded the University of Virginia . . . Washington and Lee University was endowed by our first President and originally named for him. Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Virginia Military Institute, Richmond University, the Randolph-Macon schools and Sweet Briar College are among Virginia's many other institutions of higher learning.

VIRGINIA . . . Overlooked by the Skyline Drive . . . which runs along the crest of the Blue Ridge Mountains through beautiful Shenandoah National Park. The Natural Bridge, carved by Nature from solid stone . . . and the crystal caverns are other natural wonders of which Virginians are proud. National Military Parks commemorate Virginia's historic battlefields . . . and her forest lands are preserved in the George Washington and Thomas Jefferson National Forests. Smooth, sandy bathing beaches border the Atlantic coastline . . . and in the interior, in the Piedmont section, following the hounds has been a traditional sport for many generations.
